A freak, brief but violent thunderstorm whipped in and around Washington about 5 p. m. yesterday, breaking temporarily the area's record-setting four-day heat wave.

A total of 7 deaths from heat exhaustion and one by drowning were reported during the day. Eight other persons were prostrated by heat and required hospital treatment.

For today, the weather bureau foresaw less heat, around 92 degrees, with some chance of showers. Cooler and cloudy was the prediction for Tuesday. Yesterday's high was 97 at 1:08 p. m.

Last night the Nation's toll of heat victims elsewhere stood at 167.

The storm tore down power lines, overturned sailboats, dropped local temperature 17 degrees in 32 minutes. Hail was reported at Rockville and Silver Spring, Md.

Dead From Heat

Dead from the heat were:

George R. Bound, 32-year-old Montgomery County biology teacher, of 1016 11th st. nw., stricken while driving with his wife and son in Silver Hill. He was pronounced dead at Casualty Hospital at 4:30 p. m.

Morris Shapiro, 62, of 1118 Monroe st. nw., a house painter, who collapsed while sitting on a front porch in the 1200 block Monroe st. nw. He was pronounced dead at 5:30 p. m. at Emergency Hospital.

Joel Cornett, 56, of 1214 N. Capitol st., a bellman at the Shoreham Hotel, admitted to Emergency Hospital at 5:55 p. m. from heat stroke and pronounced dead at 8:30.

Daniel Driscoll, 30, of 1326 19th st. nw., pronounced dead at 5 p. m. at Emergency Hospital.

Julius A. Keppler, 56, of 1020 14th st. nw., a guest at the Roxy Hotel, who was found dead in his room yesterday morning.

George Chapman, 39, of 1318 13th st. nw., stricken at home and pronounced dead at 7:20 p. m. at Emergency Hospital.

Augustus Lyles, 80, 38 Bates st. nw. Stricken Thursday, he died at 9:50 p. m. at Casualty Hospital.

Deputy Coroner Richard M. Rosenberg confirmed all six deaths as due to heat.

Five Sailboats Capsize

The drowning victim was Clarence Seaborne of 1504 Blunt st., Baltimore, whose body was discovered yesterday at about 12:30 near Sparrow Beach, Md. The body was found by a lifeguard in about 3½ feet of water. An hour-long effort at resuscitation failed.

Nine persons were hauled out of

Some Areas Due For Brief Relief From Heat Wave

Chicago, Aug. 29 (AP).—A brief intermission in the Nation's intense August heat wave was in sight today—but only for limited areas.

Most of the country will go on sizzling at least until Wednesday, a United States weather forecaster said.

The death toll stood at 173 in 16 States.

Cool air moved into Minnesota and northern Wisconsin today from Canada after the first touch of relief reached North Dakota yesterday.

By Monday, all of Michigan and Wisconsin, as well as extreme northern Iowa, Illinois and Indiana, will feel decidedly cooler.

Young Pickets Start Trouble

Near Riot Disrupts Rally Of Wallace at Durham, N. C.

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Durham, N. C., Aug. 29.—Henry Wallace's tour of the South was marked by a near riot in this North Carolina tobacco town tonight.

Scene of the brawl was the National Guard Armory where a crowd of 1500—Wallace supporters—half white and half Negro—was waiting to hear a speech by the Progressive Party candidate for President.

The uproar was provoked by youths picketing Wallace.

They marched into the armory, carrying placards that said "Send Wallace Back to Russia" and "We don't have race problems here—don't stir up trouble."

As the pickets marched down the aisle Wallace supporters rushed out to head them off.

One of the pickets brought his placard down on the head of a Wallace man.

In a moment, a free-for-all was on, with fists flying wildly.

National guardsmen and plain-clothes policemen rushed in, stopped the fighting and ejected the pickets.

One guardsman fired his carbine in the air outside the armory in an effort to bring order.

Wallace appeared a few moments later. When he began his speech, a roar of boos came from the rear. His speech could hardly be heard.

At one point, the Dixiecrats set off a chain of fire crackers. It sounded like a burst of machine-gun fire. The audience jumped to its collective feet, visibly startled.

Wallace remained calm.

"Sit down," he told the crowd.

Al Highsmith, a reporter for the Durham Sun, was struck on the back by boiled eggs. He was standing in the doorway of the Armory and the missiles were thrown by somebody on the outside.

"I won't be intimidated," Wallace cried above the bedlam.

His foes in the rear of the armory set up a chant of:

"We want Thurmond, we want

Close Senate Contest

Johnson Picks Up 693 Lead On Stevenson in Texas Raec

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 29 (AP).—Lyndon Johnson led by 693 votes at 9 p. m. tonight over Coke Stevenson in the Democratic runoff for the United States Senate.

With 978,719 votes tabulated the election bureau listed 489,718 votes for Johnson, United States Representative from the Tenth Congressional District, and 489,592 votes for former Governor Stevenson.

The count was based on returns from 253 of the State's 254 counties, 180 complete.

The election bureau estimated that about 11,000 votes still were uncounted.

Stevenson had held a lead of only eight votes in the 5:30 p. m. tabulation.

The 5:30 count of the bureau was 488,303 for Stevenson; 488,295 for Johnson, making a total of 976,598 votes counted. Stevenson had a toehold lead of 315 votes in the 3:30 p. m. tabulation. Between 3:30 and 5:30 the bureau had tabulated 2701 more ballots.

In Congress Race

In the congressional races incumbent Tom Pickett had 25,628 votes and Nat Patton 20,395 in District 7. Homer Thornberry had 32,760 and Kelley McClain 22,040 in District 10. Lloyd M. Bentsen, jr., had 29,705 and Philip Kazen 20,895 in District 15.

In Austin shortly after midnight Johnson said:

"I confidently await the final official count. I feel sure that we will win the victory."

Late last night Stevenson sat with friends around a campfire at his ranch near Junction, listening to returns, and said: "It's too close to be comfortable."

Hurricane Now Heading Toward Coast

Winds at 120 MPH; Storm Is 390 Miles East of Jacksonville

Miami, Fla., Aug. 29 (AP).—A vicious tropical hurricane with winds up to 120 miles an hour is now 390 miles east of Jacksonville, and moving about 10 miles an hour toward the Georgia-Carolina coastline.

Earlier dispatches said the storm had stopped, but the new advisory said this assumption was "probably incorrect" and the storm had continued its forward movement.

The hurraicane is now spread over an area 140 miles in diameter.

Winds are expected to begin increasing along the Carolina and Georgia coasts Monday afternoon. All interests in those areas were placed on the alert an dtold to stand by for further advisories.

No hurricane warnings have yet been issued.

Winds of at least 75 miles an hour or more extend outward from the "eye" for 50 and 60 miles and gale windsJof 65 miles an hour or stronger—cover an area 140 miles from the eye.

Bathing beaches as far north as New Jersey felt unusually heavy seas directly traceable to the hurricane. Reports today indicated that more than 400 persons were rescued from the surf yesterday and two others drowned. Some beaches banned bathing altogether.

Along the threatened southeastern coast, householders were waiting for further word in Fernandina, Fla., Brunswick, Ga., and swanky St. Simon's Island, Savannah, Ga., Myrtle Beach, S. C., and up to Wilmington.

'Flood' Halts Subway

New York, Aug. 29 (AP).—A break in a 36-inch water main tied up IRT subway service on Manhattan's West Side for more than seven hours today and cascaded streams of water into the cellars of buildings nearby.

P. R. R. Brakeman Decapitated by Flyer at Landover

A Pennsylvania Railroad brakeman was decapitated at noon yesterday at Landover, Md., when struck by a northbound express.

The victim, Cecil F. Hart, 31, of 1714 Bay st. se., apparently stepped from between two cars of his waiting freight train into the path of the express engine.

Less than a half hour earlier yesterday, motorist Walter P. Rogers, 48, of Fort Myer, Va., escaped with minor injuries when his automobile was all but demolished in collision with a Washington and Old Dominion train.

The Virginia accident occurred where the railroad crosses Shirley hwy. some 300 yards north of Shirlington Circle in Arlington.

3000 Yugoslavian Partisans Arrested in Albanian Purge

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Aug. 29 (U.P.).—A usually reliable source said today that more than 3000 Albanians have been arrested by their government in a two-month purge of pro-Yugoslav elements.

The arrests began late in June, when Yugoslavia's Communist-dominated neighbors launched an all-out propaganda assault on Yugoslav Premier Marshal Tito, accused by the Communist Information Bureau of betraying international communism, this source said.

Arrests were reported continuing. A growing number of Albanians was said to be fleeing daily across the frontier into Yugoslavia.

The source said that the purge had been ordered by Albania's Premier, Col. Gen. Envar Hoxha. Suspects arrested reportedly included several of Hoxha's close friends.

The source said that suspects had been treated roughly and are confined in an underground prison near Tirana, the Albanian capital.

The informant claimed that Huri Huta, well-known Albanian journalist and secretary of the Yugoslav-Albanian Society for Cultural Collaboration, was arrested two weeks ago.

Huta headed the Albanian delegation to the United Nations Conference on the Freedom of the Press at Geneva, Switzerland.

Schuman Acts to Form New Cabinet

Socialist Ramadier, Another Ex-Premier, Gives Up After Talk With Party Leaders

By William J. Humphreys

Paris (Monday), Aug. 30 (NYHT). — Former Premier Robert Schuman, a Popular Republican (MRP), agreed early this morning to try to form a new government after Socialist Paul Ramadier, another former premier, gave up after nine hours of conferences with various party leaders.

Schuman is the financial expert who stepped into the premiership during the Communist-led strike turmoil last winter and led the government for eight months. His government was followed by that of Andre Marie, which fell on Friday after six weeks, precipitating the present political crisis. Schuman was foreign minister in the Marie cabinet.

[Leaving the presidential palace late last night, Ramadier said he had given up because he did not believe he could form the "government of authority and force" which he said France needs during this critical time, the United Press reported. It was said he found he could count on only 290 of the 309 votes he would need to control the national assembly.]

Quick Action Taken

Although Ramadier was not successful in marshalling the strength he deemed necessary to govern France successfully, leaders of the moderate parties, who stand between the extremes of the Communists and Gen. Charles De Gaulle, seemed to act as if the situation called for quick agreement on a new coalition leader. President Vincent Auriol's speed in designating Schuman reflected this same attitude.

Marie's government fell over wage increases to be given labor. The Marie administration had been pledged to give trade unions satisfaction on September 1.

Leaders of both the Communist and non-Communist unions have promised trouble if satisfactory measures are not taken "rapidly."

There was another reason for an urgent regrouping of the middle-of-the-road forces. Failure to realign themselves within a short time almost certainly would require national elections. In that event, it is the general fear that the French people, thoroughly disgusted with a succession of government failures, would strengthen both left and right and weaken the middle.

Split Indicated

That would mean a nation split between the forces of the Communist Party and General De Gaulle's Rally of the French People (RPF).

Failure of the Socialists, Radical-Socialists and pro-Catholic Popular Republicans to settle their party quarrels would cost them more than their jobs. Popular opinion is that they are writing history and themselves out of it unless they reach a mutual guarantee for government stability.

Ramadier was personally responsible for the downfall of the Marie administration. As the Socialist Minister of State in Marie's cabinet, he refused to accept 10 per cent as a satisfactory cost-of-living bonus for French labor.

This was the figure proposed by Finance Minister Paul Reynaud. Ramadier argued that 15 per cent was the minimum the Socialists could accept as the defenders of the working man or lose out to the Communists.

Chambers Got U. S. Job While Spy

Nixon Says Names Of 2 Responsible Will Be Revealed At N. Y. Hearing

By The Associated Press

The House Un-American Activities Committee announced yesterday it has evidence that Whittaker Chambers got a Federal job in 1937 while still a paid agent for a Communist underground movement here.

The announcement was made by Representative Nixon (R., Calif.) who said the information was given by Chambers himself.

Nixon said at a news conference that Chambers obtained the Federal job through persons named by Elizabeth T. Bentley as members of a Communist espionage group she testified was headed by Nathan Gregory Silvermaster. Nixon declined to name the two persons or to identify the agency for which Chambers worked.

Details Promised Later

These details, he said, will be brought out during questioning of Chambers today at a public hearing in New York.

Chambers and Miss Bentley are self-described former Communists who claim they obtained information from Federal executives and ferried it to Communist agents.

As a result of Chambers' revelations about the job, Nixon said, "the Committee now has a definite provable link between the Chambers underground group and the Bentley group."

Nixon said Chambers told him that in the latter part of 1937 "while he was a paid agent of the Communist underground in Washington, Chambers approached two members of the Bentley espionage group and requested that he be put on the Federal payroll."

Job a Minor One

Within 24 hours, Nixon said, Chambers was put to work and stayed on the Federal payroll several months "while actually still a $35-a-week undercover man for the Communist underground."

While Chambers admitted that the job he obtained "was a phony job," Nixon said, the two men who helped him get it were given the impression by Chambers that it would help him in his Communist work. He said Chambers wanted the job "because he had to have some place to hang his hat while in Washington."

Nixon indicated that the job was not a major post and said Chambers held it under the name of Jay Chambers.

Nixon said that one of the men who Chambers said helped get him his job already has testified before the committee and refused to answer most questions on constitutional grounds. He emphasized, though, that the man who testified before the committee had knowledge of Chambers' Federal job.

Both to be Questioned

The other person has not testified. Both are to be questioned further as a result of the new disclosures, Nixon said.

Nixon said several other witnesses in addition to Chambers will be questioned during the New York hearings. One of them is J. Peters, named by Chambers as head of the Communist underground while Chambers was a member before he renounced communism in 1938.

Commenting on announcement that a special grand jury investigating Communist activities will be reconvened in New York September 14, Nixon said:

"This is evidence that the work of the committee has produced some results. If our hearings had not been held, they would have forgotten the grand jury until after November."

Draft Calls Men of 25 Today To Step Up for Registration

By Robert P. Jordan
Post Reporter

Greater Washington 25-year-olds will register for Selective Service today—first of an estimated 75,000 men here who must sign up for military service.

Thus will this area mirror the rest of the Nation as the first peacetime draft gets under way. Tuesday and Wednesday the 24-year-old men will register, and so down the list until registration ends September 18 with the youngest age group.

In the District, Selective Service officials have lined up 204 registration centers for men from 18 through 25 who must register. Some 5000 men are expected to register today. From 8 a. m. to 5 p. m., in sessions expected to last about 15 minutes per individual, Washington 25-year-olds may register at any of the following city-wide centers:

Police precinct stations, firehouses, the first floor of the District Building and Municipal Center, the National Guard Armory drill hall and Dunbar High School.

Registrants employed by the Federal Government may sign up at the agency where they work. Other place-of-employment registration will be done by 32 of the District's larger business houses and utilities firms.

Nearby Maryland and Virginia men will register at the following centers from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. through September 18, again except on Sundays and Labor Day:

Montgomery County: At Rockville—Rockville post office; Silver Spring—Jesup Blair House, Georgia ave. and Blair rd.; Bethesda-Chevy Chase—veterans' building, Bethesda-Chevy Chase Community and Recreation Center.

Prince Georges County: Hyattsville—County Service Building for youths from Vansville, Berwyn, Riverdale, Hyattsville and Chillum. Upper Marlboro—Draft Board No. 56 will register men at Laurel and Marlboro High Schools and Bladensburg Elementary School—for youths from Laurel, Bowie, Lanham, Bladensburg, Kent, Marlboro, Queen Anne and Mellwood election districts. Upper Marlboro—Draft Board No. 57 will register men at Surrattsville High School at Clinton, and Brandywine, Capitol Heights and District Heights Elementary Schools—for youths from Surrattsville, Piscataway, Brandywine, Nottingham, Aquasco,

36 Killed as Plane Crashes Into Bluff On Upper Mississippi

Plane Apparently Flew Into Storm Which Tore Across South Minnesota

Winona, Minn., Aug. 29 (AP). Thirty-six persons were killed today when a Northwest Airlines plane crashed into a 500-foot Mississippi River bluff in a severe storm.

Walter Haeussinger, Winona police radio dispatcher, said the 33 passengers and 3 crew members were dead.

Capt. Jack Volkel, a NVA pilot who lives in Winona and who was one of the first at the scene of the crash, said he thought lightning had struck the plane. He said it appeared the plane had broken up in the air.

Severe Storm In Area

(The Civil Aeronautic Board in Washington said it had received a preliminary report from its investigators that the plane's pilot had advised when he was over La Crosse, Wis., that he was flying at an altitude of 7000 feet, and that there was a severe thunderstorm in the area.

(The Weather Bureau at Minneapolis reported that a small tornado struck the area east of Rochester, Minn., about 45 miles west of Winona. It said high winds were reported moving east accompanied by thunderstorms and hail.)

The plane, a Martin 2-O-2, had left Chicago at 3:50 p. m. (PCS) and was due in Minneapolis at 5:30 p. m. (PCS).

Dead Woman Holds Baby

The crash occurred on Sutters Ridge, between Winona and Fountain City, Wis., on the Wisconsin side of the Mississippi River.

Parts of the wreckage were found in swamplands along the river. A few bits also landed in a ball park at Winona, 7 miles south of the crash scene.

Haeussinger, Executive Editor Gordon Closway and Reporter William White of the Winona Republican-Herald were among the first to reach the wreckage.

Volkel identified the plane as one of NWA's passenger fleet.

Closway said he counted ten dead in the plane. One was a woman still holding a baby in her arms.

The pilot, Capt. Robert Johnson of St. Paul, was still in the nose of the ship, Closway said.

Bodies Widely Scattered

"Bodies were scattered over a mile area," Closeway said. "We didn't find all the bodies but I don't see how anyone could have lived through it."

"When we first heard of the crash, we started out to find the wreckage," Closway said. "We waded in water waist deep along the Burlington Railway right-of-way and there found a piece of the wing.

"A little beyond, we found a part of the tail. As we started climbing the bluff, we followed a flooded creek. There we found the decapitated body of a man who apparently had been washed down the hill after the plane crashed.

"We climbed higher and there

Range Doubled in Three Years

America's Only Ready Weapon Is the B-29, Master of the Air

Since the war, the range of the B-29 has been stretched to more than twice than it was in 1945. How this significant military achievement occurred is told here for the first time.

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

In the three years of uneasy peace since V-J Day no citizen of the United States has been permitted to put far from his mind the question of his Nation's ability to make war.

There has been much talk of "push-button warfare," of "shovers" of atomic bombs, of bacteriological conquest, of a quick defeat or a quick victory by these or other dreambook means.

There also has been grave consideration, without discordant public debate, of what can be done with the means now available.

The facts are these:

1. "Push-button warfare" is still in the laboratories.

2. Supersonic flight and guided missiles are in sight but not yet militarily practical.

3. Bombing aircraft of extreme range and payload capacity are on order but not yet available in sufficient numbers to constitute a military factor.

4. The atomic bomb has been steadily improved since Nagasaki, but its quantities are secret and the bomb itself suffers the military disability of having become a political football.

5. The ground army, about to be reinforced by the draft, must be given at least 18 months to train itself for a role in combat which even now is in some quarters discounted.

6. The Navy, with no potential maritime enemy afloat, is endeavoring to prepare itself to meet the concept of modern war in the face of bitter disagreement over what its part in war should be.

Whatever course another war might ultimately take, there is little doubt in military circles that

West Europe Found Calmer Over Berlin Block Than U. S.

Post Reporter

(This is the second in a series of articles of a Post reporter who has just returned from Europe.)

It was almost like coming back to the war to come home from Europe this summer.

In all of western Europe there was nothing like the present ferment of American discussion about foreign policy, about Communism and spies, about the strategy and tactics of a new war.

The attitude toward the Berlin blockade was not as tough as American policy-makers have supposed American opinion to be. The Europeans were neither as exasperated as we, nor as excited.

They took the whole thing more calmly. They would go to great lengths to avoid a final showdown with Russia this year over this issue or any other. We could not count on them to support any policy of seeking a showdown that might end in war.

Uppermost Only in Berlin

Only in Berlin itself could it be said that the East-West struggle was uppermost in the public mind —and Berlin remembers what Soviet occupation can mean.

The duel with Russia looked real enough when you stood on the field at Tempelhof and watched the giant C-54s dropping from the sky every three minutes, and the 10-ton trucks rolling up to take away their cargoes.

The drama of Berlin had plenty of meaning when you sat among a crowd of 3500 Berlin Socialists, a few blocks from the Soviet sector, and heard them shout defiance of the Soviet Union and vow to endure any hardships rather than fall into Soviet hands.

These were proofs that the Ber-

Accord Expected On Procedure for Big Four Talks

Moscow, Aug. 29 (AP).—Prospects appear good for a procedural agreement this week at the four-power talks in the Kremlin, it was learned on excellent authority today.

Bare technicalities are now reported holding up such an agreement and these may be dispensed with in the next 24 hours.

Such an agreement, of course, should not be taken to mean the four powers have settled all the questions they have discussed involving East-West differences. It would mean, however, that there was a good chance of agreement over the next phase of the talks.

The three Western diplomats negotiating with Russian leaders conferred at the United States Embassy for 45 minutes today.

Communists In New Berlin Ouster Effort

Present Regime Had Placed Confidence In 4-Power Talks

Berlin, Aug. 29 (AP).—Communist leaders called on their supporters today for new efforts to overthrow the city government and supplant it with a Red-dominated action committee.

The democratically elected city government hoped the four-power talks in Moscow would bring respite.

But the Communists issued a "no quarter" declaration.

Plan Outlined

The plan of the Communist-controlled Socialist Unity Party (SED) to put a hand-picked, 21-member action committee in the driver's seat was outlined in a special SED proclamation.

The "special committee" would be made up of three members of the present government, nine members of the city assembly, and nine "citizens" to be chosen from the Communist faction of the city's Trade Union Federation.

Communist representation from the legislative and executive sections of the government, added to the "citizen" membership, would give the Communists solid control of the committee.

The Communists said their committee would work in closest cooperation with the Communist-controlled German Economic Commission of the Soviet zone. This would mean virtual incorporation of Berlin into the Soviet zone.

Want Currency Withdrawn

The Communists demanded also immediate withdrawal of western-sponsored currency from Berlin. This issue was reported discussed by the four powers in Moscow.

SED leaders called on the "workers of Berlin" to continue an "unrelaxed fight against the city government majority and place all

Soviet Decrees House for Every Russian Citizen

London, Aug. 29 (AP).—The Moscow Radio said today the presidium of the Supreme Soviet has issued a decree entitling every Russian citizen to buy or build himself a house.

A broadcast, heard in London, said the house, which would be considered the private property of the owner, could be up to two stories high and contain up to five rooms.

The report also said Soviet citizens would be granted the use of building land in perpetuity, and added that the size of the plots would be fixed by requirements of town planning schemes.

The decree was said to be in accord with the constitution of the USSR which provides that the "right of personal property of citizens in their income from work and in their savings, in their dwelling houses and auxiliary household economy . . . are protected by law."

D. C. Electrician, Woman Die As His Plane Crashes in N. Y.

A District man and woman were killed Saturday when the plane he was piloting crashed at Mahopac, Putnam County, N. Y., it was learned yesterday. The dead:

Mrs. Alberta Payne McIntire, 50, of 134 C st. se.

The crash occurred as Wright came in too low at the Mahopac Airport.

Mrs. McIntyre suffered a fractured skull and died immediately.

Wright struggled free from the plane which burst into flames, gave his name and address to rescuers, and collapsed.

He was taken to a Peekskill hospital, where he died several hours later of shock and burns. His body was taken to a Cold Spring, Putnam County, funeral home.

Wright took off from the Hybla Valley Airport, Alexandria, about 7:45 a. m. Saturday.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Marie B. Wright, 6235 33d st. nw.; a son by a former marriage, Vernon Wright, and a sister, Eva Brown of Washington.

Mrs. McIntire, widow of Joseph McIntire, is survived by her mother, Mrs. Clara Lee Payne, and two brothers, Fred E. and Bernard C. Payne, al of Washington.

'Dispersion' Urged Due to Atomic Age

By the United Press

The Federal Works Agency advised State and local planning officials yesterday to start thinking about the problems of "industrial dispersion" in the Atomic Age.

Industrial dispersion means scattering important factories over the countryside, instead of clustering them together in a few big city areas. The idea is to provide smaller and "less attractive" targets for atomic bombs.

Assistant Administrator J. W. Follin pointed out, in an article in the FWA publication, Public Construction, that the National Security Resources Board has the main responsibility for planning "the strategic relocation of industry." But he said FWA is concerned because new "dispersed" industrial regions will need public utilities — waterworks, sewers, lights, and highways.

Follin said studies of the Security Board have indicated that cities of not over 50,000 people, separated from other communities by open countryside, would be the best solution.

He said these Atomic Age industrial towns might be developed as "new cities" built from scratch, or "as a result of expansion of our many desirable smaller towns and hamlets dotted over extensive regions of open country."

Giant 'Mars' Christened At Chicago

Chicago, Aug. 29 (U.P.)—The Navy flying boat Caroline Mars, fresh from a record-breaking flight from Honolulu to Chicago, was christened formally today by the mother of a Congressional Medal of Honor winner.

Navy officials and civic dignitaries took part in ceremonies at the Lake Michigan site where the 82½-ton craft was moored.

The Mars, newest and biggest flying boat of the Navy, covered 4748 miles in 24 hours and 9 minutes in its flight which ended here at noon yesterday.

It was the longest flight ever made by a Mars type flying boat and the craft carried a record payload for the distance. The cargo was 14,445 pounds, including 25 passengers, in addition to 17 crew members.

Mrs. Fred W. Lester, Downers Grove, Ill., christened the plane. Her son, Navy Hospital Corpsman Fred Lester, 23, was awarded the Medal of Honor posthumously for laying down his life in rescuing a wounded marine in Okinawa in 1945.

The Mars will remain on display here as a feature of the Cook (County) Chicago Fair until Tuesday. It is scheduled to fly to the Patuxent (Md.) Naval Air Station, then to Cleveland September 4, for the National Air Races and to leave for Alameda, Calif., September 7 to enter regular Navy service.

A-Bomb Base Too Tricky for Defense Pile

By The Associated Press

Uranium, raw material for atom bombs, is too difficult to store and none of it is being stowed away in the Nation's $3,400,000,000 war chest.

This was shown yesterday in a report on "Operation Squirrel," as the Munitions Board's stockpiling of critical war materials is known unofficially. Uranium, radium and 17 other materials were classed as those "posing problems of storage such as to outweigh the advantages of stockpiling them."

Because of "unsettled international conditions," the board's previous slow-and-steady buying of 67 key items has gone into high gear.

Some 495 million dollars will be spent or obligated by next June, of which 213 million dollars will actually be delivered by that time. In contrast, only 87 million dollars of materials was delivered in the two years since the stockpiling program began.

About 25 per cent of the overall goal of $3,402,997,000 is on hand or "in sight," the board reported, but it hinted things are getting more expensive and the goal may have to be raised.

It explained that "national security now requires accelerated stockpiling." The board has tried to avoid upsetting the civilian recovery applecart by hoarding scarce materials needed in domestic production.

Yard to Handle Navy Repairs

The Naval Gun Factory in Washington has been selected as the site for 1 of 10 ship repair divisions being established in the United States under the Naval Reserve program.

The Navy said last night the purpose of the program will be to form "nuclei of ship repair units" which can to expanded to full strength when needed.

Facilities at the Naval Gun Factory, a Navy spokesman said, will be utilized to set up hull, ordnance, machinery and electrical repair departments. The division will have a basic complement of 100 officers and 2000 enlisted men.

The personnel will be organized reservists skilled or semiskilled in their civilian occupations. They will be required to drill twice each month and to participate in a two-week annual training "cruise," the spokesman said.

Other divisions are being formed at Boston, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Portsmouth, Va., Charleston, S. C., New Orleans, San Diego, Vallejo, Calif., and Bremerton, Wash.

Mrs. Kasenkina 'Doing All Right'

New York, Aug. 29 (U.P.)—Mrs. Oksana Kasenkina is "doing all right" after an operation on her right knee, her physician, Dr. Grant B. Pennoyer, said today.

Mrs. Kasenkina, who fractured her right leg and kneecap in many places in a jump from the Soviet consulate, underwent a two-hour operation on her knee yesterday.

Range of B-29 Now Doubled

it would be opened by a powerful air attack designed to destroy or fatally deplete in one blow this Nation's ability to make war. Nor is there any doubt that such an attack would be without warning.

Should such an attack come today or tomorrow, there would be no push-button apparatus to meet it, no supersonic aircraft to outfly it, no guided missiles to track it down before it reached its targets. And there would be no giant aircraft to retaliate at once with a devastating counterblow to write its Pyrrhic anticlimax.

To meet such an attack now and to follow it up with counterattack the United States has the equipment with which it finished World War II. For counterattack it has the B-29 Superfortress and, in lesser numbers, the B-50 Superbomber, a souped-up B-29.

These veteran aircraft, which in the last two years the Air Force has down-graded from "very heavy" to "medium" bombers, are now America's reliance. Until the great B-36, with its theoretical 10,000-mile range and its payload capacity of 36 tons, is ready, the B-29 and B-50 must serve as the Nation's only very heavy bomber.

What the Strategic Air Command, commanded by Gen. George C. Kenney, has done since the war to make this bomber adequate to the potential demand upon it would be fabulous were it not true. As it now stands, the B-29 flying over the North Pole, can reach any point in potential enemy territory, drop 10 tons of bombs and land in neutral or friendly territory.

One other nation, Russia, also has the B-29, copied from a few it interned during World War II after bombing raids on Japan. Whether Russia has been able to squeeze extra mileage out of its B-29s is not known. But it is sound military practice to figure that the other fellow can do as well as you can and maybe a little better.

On that basis, Russian B-29s flying over the Pole could reach any point in the continental United States, drop their bombs on industrial centers, and land in Mexico, Central America, Panama or Cuba to be interned for the duration, provided those countries to the south of us remained neutral.

Thus the concept of polar routes in warfare points up clearly the vital necessity of a closely knit hemispheric understanding. And equally, as will be seen, it makes necessary the cultivation of friendship throughout the world.

Original Range 3000 Miles

When the B-29 first dazzled the land with its deeds against Japan it was, under favorable conditions, a 3000-mile airplane. Taking off from Saipan, it could deliver its bomb-load on Japanese cities and usually return. Iwo Jima's strip saved many of them which had met contrary winds or were forced by countermeasures into extensive maneuvering.

Since the war the Strategic Air Command has concentrated on stretching the B-29's range. How well it has succeeded is borne out by the occasional B-29 flights which make the news, nonstop flights of better than 5000 miles with full payload. Stunts, like the Pacusan Dreamboat flight from Honolulu to Cairo turn out to be not stunts at all but the serious business of making the only weapon now available capable of doing the job it may have to do.

The performance of the B129 becomes even more impressive when it is considered that its 5000-mile flights are measured not in land miles but in nautical miles, increasing them to 5750 miles as miles are measured on automobile speedometers.

Recently, a B-29 flew from Florida to the Pacific, dropped a simulated five-ton bomb-load in the ocean and flew back, nonstop, a total of 5972 miles. This long-range bomber, using special "cruise control" procedures—drifting with the air currents—was in the air 23 hours and 30 minutes.

Even during the war this process of stretching the big bomber's range without altering its construction was begun. A matter of attention to little things, it went like this:

Mechanics made sure that cowling flaps on the four engines were in exact alignment; one or two out of line and dragging in the airstream cost miles.

It was made certain that bomb bay doors closed tightly; three-quarters of an inch in the airstream cost 8 to 10 miles an hour.

Throttle settings were studied to determine the most economical.

Large formations of aircraft, taking off individually, were not permitted to circle over the field to rendezvous. The first off throttled back and those behind flew toward them, slowly closing the gap until the formation was together, not over the field but hundreds of miles nearer the target.

Pilots learned to gain altitude not in steep, fuel-consuming climbs, but slowly, a few feet an hour, which was all they needed to reach bombing altitude in a 1000-mile approach.

Pilots also learned to "tack," to seek favorable winds and use them to save fuel.

The result of these and other simple devices was to boost the B-29s' range from 3000 to 4000 miles and then to 5000. Proud of this achievement, but not satisfied, Kenney then insisted on accomplishing the same results with full loads. When this was done, he shot for the same mark in nautical miles rather than in statute miles and got it.

Much of the technical work upon which these achievements are based was done by Col. Clarence S. Irvine, who commanded the Dreamboat on its great transpolar flight from Honolulu to Cairo. But it was translated into performance by ordinary run-of-mine crews, the men who would fly the B-29s on their combat missions. What has been done to make the B-29 truly a long-range bomber was done by them.

The outcome of this work by the SAC and its B-29 crews has been to give the United States a bombing airplane which could reach any target in Europe or northern Asia and land in Japan, China, India or the Middle East. From Japan it could reach Asiatic targets and return.

There are many scientific marvels in the offing, and production has started on the first 100 of the mighty B-36. But the B-29 is America's reliance now and what it has been made to accomplish is the precise measure of what America may hope to accomplish at the outset of another war.

What it is now doing underscores the fact that, even in mechanized war, it is not the machine but the men in the machines that win battles.

4 Are Americans

'Intellectuals' Name Leftist Peace Group

Wroclaw, Poland, Aug. 29 (AP).—The World Congress of Intellectuals announced today it is establishing an "international committee in defense of peace" in Paris as part of a world-wide campaign to avert a new war.

Twenty-one persons, including four Americans, were named to the committee.

The announcement was made after a manifesto was issued by the predominantly pro-Communist conclave calling for setting up international and national peace organizations throughout the world.

The new group in Paris is expected to coordinate propaganda and all activities described as aimed at the preservation and promotion of world peace and against "a handful of self-interested men in America and Europe" seeking war.

Americans Warned

Americans appointed included Prof. Harlow Shapley of Harvard University, Jo Davidson, sculptor living in Paris and two writers, Albert E. Kahn and Howard Fast.

(Several months ago Fast was fined $500 and sentenced to three months imprisonment for withholding books and records subpenaed by the House Committee on un-American Activities. He and 10 co-defendants are free under bond pending action by the United States Supreme Court on a motion for a rehearing in the case in October.)

Other committee members include J. B. S. Haldane and Louis Golding of Britain; Mme. Irene Joliot-Curie France; Alexander Fadeyev and Piotr Fedaseyev of Russia and Jose Giral, former premier of republican Spain.

Several British and American delegates attacked the whole congress as one of "hate and war." They deplored the almost constant attacks on the United States, her culture, and British-American "imperialism" as voiced by Soviet delegates and their sympathizers during the past four days.

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Aug. 29 (U.P.).—The government has begun a secret campaign against religion, a letter written by the nation's Catholic bishops and read in all Catholic churches charged today.

The 1100-word letter called on the state to halt systematic persecution of the church. It was drafted by Czech bishops August 16 at Nitra under direction of Archbishop Joseph Beran.

The letter was read in the midst of a church and state deadlock in which the church has refused to: 1. Permit state control of church schools; 2. Indorse the Communist regime, or 3, Allow priests to take part in the government.

The letter accused the government of attacking Catholic bishops as "enemies of the people" and breaking a promise to reach agreement on religious questions.

"A secret antichurch and anti-religious fight has started," the letter said. "This follows the same pattern used against the church and religion in other countries."

"Competent state representatives have shown distrust toward the church by banning almost all Catholic publications in Bohemia and Moravia.

"Unfounded attacks on the Holy See are aimed at creating an artificial gap between us and the people. Under the pretext of 'progressiveness' of priests even our loyal priests are now being estranged from their lawful superiors and our good mother . . the Catholic Church."

Ex-Czech Official Tells of Tribulations

London, Aug. 29 (AP).—Peter Zenkl, former deputy premier of Czechoslovakia, told newsmen today the last six months he spent in his homeland "were worse for me and my wife than the six years I was a prisoner of the Germans in the Buchenwald concentration camp."

Zenkl, also a former lord mayor of Prague, is a fugitive from his Communist-ruled homeland. He and his wife arrived in London by plane this afternoon from the American zone of Germany.

He will leave for the United States in about two weeks and will work for the liberation of his country.

Costs, Not Berlin Block, Europe's Big Worry

lin blockade was real and that the western response was strong. But the danger looked less vivid, and the response less convincing, when you saw it from the streets of Paris or Milan or Rome, or, in fact, from any part of non-Soviet Europe that had never felt the iron heel of the Red army.

Living Cost Major Worry

With few exceptions, the western Europeans this summer have gone about their business, worried more by the high cost of living than by high politics, watching the Berlin tug of war uneasily out of the corners of their eyes, but seldom believing themselves a part of it.

There are many reasons for this apparent detachment, all indicative of the self-centered psychology that has dominated the Continent this summer.

For one thing, the great panic of 1946 and 1947 has all but disappeared. The fear of being engulfed in a Communist tide, without help from the only country that could provide it, has been removed by well- timed American action by repeated proofs the United States was alive to the situation.

The only vestiges of the panic of eighteen months ago are the agitated appeals that still come to Washington from foreign capitals, notably from Paris, for military help to defend western Europe. The man in the street, so far as a visitor can discover, looks ahead to a troubled future, but without agitation or alarm.

Test of Nerve, Will-Power

Once American economic, political and even military power was thrown into the scales, the western European tended to look upon the Berlin business as a test of nerve and will-power between the two non-European giants, the United States and Russia. The fact that British planes flew almost as many cargoes into Berlin as American, and that Britain was as deeply committed as the United States, was generally overlooked.

The western Europeans were onlookers, and calm on lookers at that. Individually they felt too weak and war-weary to take an active part, even as a kind of cheering section to support the American and British position.

They simply refused to take seriously the idea that either the United States or Russia would go to war at this time and on this Berlin issue. Their attitude of detachment would have vanished, however, if either of two things had happened.

One would have been a western decision to surrender Berlin immediately and concentrate instead upon a new western German capital at Frankfurt. Such a decision at this time, in advance of a four-power agreement, probably would have shaken western Europe to its foundations, would have weakened every anti-Communist government in the countries where communism is losing ground today, and might have undermined the entire economic and moral recovery of the Continent.

Hinted by Donovan

The other possibility that would have terrified western Europe was the one hinted by former Maj. Gen. William J. Donovan at his press conference in Berlin in July, and later by the Army Stars and Stripes, in Frankfurt. This was the so-called "show of force" against the Russians, perhaps by world-wide retaliation, perhaps by sending an armed convoy up the autobahn from the British zone.

"Why! that would mean getting the civilians out of London!" said one British editor who had been supporting a policy of firmness without provocation in Berlin. He thought that unless the western governments were ready to reissue gas masks to their people, to reopen the air-raid shelters, to revive all the civilian defense apparatus of wartime, they had better resist the temptation to make "a show of force."

Alarm in France and Italy

In France and Italy the very idea spread alarm. In Holland and Belgium the foreign ministers were reported to have warned Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin against any rash or impatient move—and Bevin did not need the warning. Italian newspapers derided the idea, and one of them, by no means a Communist sheet, published a half-serious, half-joshing account of Donovan's career under the heading, "Wild Bill's War."

The western Europeans are deadly serious about this: They know they would be a battleground in any Soviet-American conflict. They are not impressed when American Air Force officers say air power could keep such a struggle from western European soil. They are still less impressed when they hear American officers in Germany quoted as saying that four-power talks with the Russians would be "a defeat for our side."

Far Less War Fear

There is fear of war, of course, in western Europe, although far less than in the press and public meetings of the United States. There is a depressing unanimity among the Liverpool dock-worker, the Paris merchant, the Milan factory hand, the Vienna jeep driver, that war between the United States and Russia is bound to come some day. But these western Europeans, and probably millions of others like them are in no mood to prepare for it now, or even to get out of its way if it comes.

The most widespread attitude this summer is that if it comes they will let it roll over them, and let the two great protagonists, the United States and Russia, do the fighting. In their present frame of mind the western Europeans do not feel themselves masters of their destiny. Too few of them, in fact, believe they have any destiny at all.

One of them put it this way: "You Americans and the Russians know what you want and where you are going. We Europeans have no sense of going anywhere."

This may be just a hangover from the great psychological depression of a year ago, the passive and half-despairing state of mind from which the Marshall Plan rescued Europe just in time. Nevertheless, such thinking has its meaning and its moral.

It means that the United States would not have 270 million eager democratic allies in western Europe in case of a war with the Soviet Union this year or next year. It suggests that western Europe would prove to be weak and shaky except as a geographical base for American operations.

Its people are in no mental or military condition for resistance to an invader, save only in those areas along the Stettin-Trieste borderline where the Soviet secret police is more than an abstraction. The great mass of western Europeans have other things on their minds.

(TOMORROW—What really concerns the western Europeans.)

Reds Hit U. S. In Girl's Case

Berlin, Aug. 29 (U.P.).—The Russian-licensed Berlin press charged today that the United States is manufacturing anotner "Kasenkina affair" by refusing to hand over to the Russians a 14-year-old Ukrainian girl.

Both the Red Army's Taegliche Rundschau and Neues Deutschland, voice of Germany's Communist Social Unity Party, said American liaison officers in Berlin refused yesterday to release the girl to Russian doctors.

German public welfare officials said they have been trying for two years to turn the girl, Helena Korelenko, over to Russian medical men.

A Soviet information Bureau dispatch said Helena told the Russians yesterday that she wants to go back to Russia. This was denied by American liaison officers, who said she wept when she was told she might be taken home.

your power behind the SED program."

They thanked the demonstrators whose rioting and abuse prevented the city council from meeting twice last week, and praised them for their "initiative."

They called for more demonstrations.

The city hall, where the council meets is situated in the Soviet sector of the city. But the council may be forced to move to the western-occupied sectors for any future meetings. A decision may be made Monday when the senior committee of the council convenes.

American authorities have called last week's demonstrations part of a Soviet plan to unseat the elected government through riots which might provide an excuse for intervention by Soviet troops.

The American analysis said the Soviet design was to force the city government to move to the western sectors so the Communists could hold the city hall and install their own government.

Despite the Communist opposition, the city council is planning to send representatives to the west German constitutional convention. They named Socialist Ernst Reuter to attend the preliminary meetings at Rudesheim Monday. Socialist leaders said it is hoped a council meeting could be called in time to elect a delegation to attend the later deliberations at Bonn.

On the police front American and German authorities reported a quiet night. The Russians yesterday released five Americans after a relatively brief confinement.

Jerusalem Accord Reported Reached

Cairo, Aug. 29 (AP).—Jews and Egyptians have agreed to proposals for bringing peace to the neutral area of Jerusalem, the chiefs of staff for Count Folke Bernadotte said tonight.

Gen. Aage Lundstroem, chief assistant to the U. N. mediator, predicted the result would be an end soon to the "ruthless battle" between Jews and Arabs in the Holy City.

Lundstroem said the Egyptian government's agreement had been given him by Mohamed Haidar Pasha, the defense minister. The Jews had given their acceptance earlier.

Lundstroem said both parties had agreed on a proposed arrangement for the neutral zone surrounding the Red Cross area in Jerusalem which comprises government house, the Jewish agricultural school for girls and, an Arab college. Fighting has been going on there for some time.

Observers will see that the arrangement is respected by both sides, he added. If troops of either side enter the neutral zone "I will consider this a violation of the truce and refer it to the Security Council," he declared.

Egyptians Admit Killing U. N. Aides in Plane

Stockholm, Sweden, Aug. 29 (U.P.). The Egyptian government admitted today that Egyptian machinegun fire killed two French United Nations observers Saturday as they cruised in a UN plane over Arab-held territory near Gaza, in Palestine.

A message to UN mediator Count Folke Bernadotte expressed regret at the deaths of Lieut. Col. Joseph Queru, assistant chief of UN field operations, and his pilot Capt. P. Jeannel, but declared the plane was not clearly marked and was flying in the wrong corridor.

[Bernadotte's office said the plane was flying without clearance and in the wrong air corridor, the Associated Press said.]

Indonesians, Dutch Split

Batavia, Java, Aug. 29 (AP).—Relations between the Republic of Indonesia and the Netherlands government officials reached a new low today with the refusal of the Republic to guarantee safe conduct for two Dutch officials to accompany a transport train.

The Dutch had asked for the safe conduct for officers planning to escort certain cars to Kalioerang. Dr. Soepomo, Republican representative, returned yesterday from Jogjakarta, Republican capital, with a letter stating the "government cannot give safe conduct, as the sentiments of the population were aroused by recent incidents."

The letter, signed by Dr. Mohammed Roem, Indonesian Minister of the Interior, listed shootings, the Dutch seizure of a Republican hospital, and the expulsion of Republican officials from Batavia.

The letter said it is still the wish of Indonesian Premier Mohamed Hatta's government to "come to an agreement with the Dutch," but that it appeared the Dutch "cooperate with ultra-Leftist groups in the Republic" to bring about the downfall of the Hatta cabinet.

A Dutch communique said today Acting Governor General Hubertus J. Van Mook will leave September 8 for the Netherlands for "general discussions on the situation" in the Indies.

China Currency Firm 1st Week

Shanghai, Aug. 29 (AP).—China's new currency completed its first week of life tonight with no sign of a black market, and with the exchange rate still firm at the government figure of four to the United States dollar.

Both official and business circles, however, expressed uneasiness over continuing sharp rises in prices, which were supposed to have been frozen at the August 19 level.

Wages were frozen at the same level, and unless prices can be checked, a crisis is expected with the September 1 payday.

115 Officers to Study Infantry Mobilization

The Army, Navy and Air Force have selected 115 outstanding officers for instruction in all aspects of industrial mobilization.

These officers—54 from the Army, 22 Navy, 3 Marines and 36 Air Force—will attend a 10-months course at the industrial college of the armed forces at Fort Lesley J. McNair, beginning today.

Chilean Envoy, 'Captive' Staff Quits Russia

Helsinki, Finland, Aug. 29 (U.P.).—The former Chilean Ambassador to Russia and members of his "captive" staff arrived here today from the Soviet Union.

Ambassador Luis David Cruz Ocampo, stepping off the train from Leningrad, said, "It's nice to be outside the Soviet Union."

The Ambassador did not leave Moscow when his government broke off relations with Russia last October because Soviet authorities would not permit his Russian daughter-in-law to leave the country. Russian diplomats in Santiago, Chile, were detained as hostages for Cruz Ocampo's safe departure.

Despite official protests, Russia never consented to allow the younger Mrs. Cruz Ocampo to leave the country. Her husband was permitted to stay with her when the two governments agreed last week to exchange their diplomatic "prisoners."

Soviet diplomats from Santiago arrived by air last night in Buenos Aires, Argentina.

Greeks Open New Drive on Rebels

Athens, Greece (Monday), Aug. 30 (U.P.).—The Greek army announced today it had opened a new offensive in the Vitsi Mountains of northern Greece against the second "free Greek" area controlled by Gen. Markos Vofiades' guerillas.

The new campaign opened at 3 a. m. (Greek time) with the battle-hardened Fifteenth Division and elements of the First, Second and Eleventh divisions taking part. They were supported by 30-ton Centaur tanks, planes and mobile artillery.

The troops attacked westward from Florina and north from Kastoria against an estimated eight guerilla brigades of about 3500 men.

Plane Plunges Into Swamp

found three more bodies, all of them badly mutilated.

"A farmer, William Pehler, said he and his son, Charles, were in their barn at 4:30 when they saw the plane flying east, apparently to get out of the storm.

"Pehler said he thought the ship was going to hit the barn, it was flying so low.

"It went over a rise and then Pehler said he and his son heard it crash into Sutters Ridge.

"We found the body of one woman whose clothes had been torn off and she was still clinging to a red purse."

It was doubtful, Closway said, that all of the bodies would be found until daylight made a thorough search of the heavily wooded area possible.

Mrs. Charles Guenther, a farm woman, said she and her husband witnessed the crash from their automobile.

"We were returning home from Winona," Mrs. Guenther said. "When we saw the plane rolling like a barrel. Some pieces of the plane fell off. It was raining hard but we didn't think there was much wind.

"Then it crashed into a large wooded area."

The plane's crew included Dave Brenner, copilot, Minneapolis, and Mary Ungs, stewardess, Minneapolis.

The airline said it was the first fatal crash in more than 20 years of operation of Northwest's Chicago to Minneapolis route.

Incomplete List Of Crash Victims

Chicago, Aug. 29 (AP).—Following is an incomplete passenger list of the Northwest Airlines plane which crashed tonight near Winona, Minn., as announced by Northwest Airlines in Chicago:

Miss T. Green, New York City; Beinenfeld, New York; Henderson, MacDonald L., Newcastle, Ind.; A. Gould, Chicago; R. Fry, Baltimore; W. Halvorson, Princeton, Ill.

Bilyeau, from Los Angeles via New York; Plummer, Dayton, Ohio; Plummer, Biltmore Hotel, Dayton, Ohio; P. Berquist, Glen Ellyn, Ill.; Mrs. F. Waneke, Chicago; L. Waneke, Chicago; Johnson, Columbus, Ohio; Miss French, Youngstown, Ohio.

Dille, from Minneapolis R. Olin Carlson, C. A., Worcester, Mass; J. W. Tinker, Philadelphia, Pa.; head, Minneapolis; Mr. and Mrs. P. R. Learned, sr., Minneapolis, and their grandson, Stephen Learn, 4, Chicago, son of Park Learned, sr., United Air Lines' senior flight captain; J. A. O'Brien, Chicago, K. Jindrich, Berwyn, Ill., F. E. Seckinger, St. Louis, J. Simpson, Chicago.

Transport That Crashed Is New Postwar Plane

By the United Press

The twin-engined Martin 2-0-2 transport that crashed last night in Fountain City, Wis., is a new postwar plane that has been in operation about a year.

The crash was believed to be the first by a 2-0-2.

The 40-passenger plane has a cruising speed of 280 miles an hour, which the Glenn L. Martin Co., Baltimore, Md., said makes it nearly 100 miles an hour faster than other two-engine planes now operating on the airlines. It is powered by two Pratt and Whitney 2100-horsepower enginese.

In introducing the plane, the company had this to say:

"From engine fires to flying birds, the Martin 2-0-2 has been designed to prevent and overcome all types of emergencies, provide safe, dependable service."

2-Plane Collision Kills 5 in Missouri

Fenton, Mo., Aug. 29 (AP).—Four men and a woman were killed when two Piper Cub planes collided head-on 400 feet above the ground near here today.

The Missouri highway patrol identified the victims in one plane as Milton Carl Fick, 22, of Chesterfield, Mo., and Allen Burkhart, 16, of Ellisville. Those in the other plane were identified as Richard L. Arnold, 18, the pilot; his mother, Mrs. Loretta Lowrey Arnold, 38, and Frank G. Kubas, 32, all of St. Louis.

The planes were owned by two nearby flying services which rent the crafts to private flyers.

American Diplomacy

Governor Dewey's devotion to the task of getting the right men for the right job has been demonstrated in Albany. If elected President, he hopes to do the same thing in Washington, particularly in the choice of American representatives abroad. Certainly the pledge is in keeping with the needs of Atlas-like America. No longer can this country afford the luxury of allowing diplomatic jobs to be peddled around without regard to fitness. In this new day cliques—at least the undue influence of cliques—cannot be tolerated, as has been discovered by the Navy, which has put its foot down on the Green Bowl, the source of morale-destroying nepotism in the past. The nature of the problem with which Governor Dewey may have to cope is illustrated in the appointment of George Wadsworth as Ambassador to Turkey.

Mr. Wadsworth used to be Ambassador to Iraq, and was brought back to America for service among the Arab delegations at the General Assembly last November. He is a philo-Arab of missionary zeal. No man worked harder in New York to spread the idea among the Arabs that the heart of the United States was not in the Assembly decision of last November 29. The Arabs were misled by his assurances. But Mr. Wadsworth's enthusiasm did not stop there. For weeks he hung around Washington, misleading the State Department and the Pentagon about conditions in the Middle East, and could not restrain himself from rejoicing in the presence of all and sundry when the State Department temporarily reversed its Palestine policy. Like a few other American representatives, he used a "we," and it was not clear whether he meant the people he represents or the people to whom he is accredited. Yet, in spite of this record, he is promoted to Turkey. Turkey of all places! Turkey is not the place for a hot partisan, but for a cool-headed emissary anxious to promote peace and reconstruction in the Middle East on the basis of facts.

Savants Sans Savvy

The trouble with these intellectuals seems to be that they are a rather naive and innocent lot—absent-minded fellows who keep forgetting what the score is and how many are out. Let us take the example of one of our more cerebral citizens, Mr. John O. Rogge, who has been attending the World Congress of Intellectuals at Wroclaw, Poland. Mr. Rogge, as probably you know, is a follower of that other intellectual, Mr. Henry Wallace, and one of those who have professed to believe that whatever little misunderstandings may exist between ourselves and the Kremlin could be quickly cleared by a few more friendly chats between the generous spirits on either side, as was the way in the good old days at Tehran, Yalta and Potsdam.

Mr. Rogge spent the first part of the Congress in discovering that the differences are a little more numerous and a little more complicated than he had realized. He listened to torrents of billingsgate unleashed against America and Americans by an intellectual giant called Ilya Ehrenberg and to a discourse on American culture by another profound Russian genius called Alexandre Fadayev. M. Fadayev had a good many things to say about American culture, the pleasantest of which was that it is "disgusting filth."

This was a little too much for Mr. Rogge, who after all is a candidate for the office of surrogate of New York County, sometimes considered part of the United States. In ringing accents Mr. Rogge declared that he was opposed to authoritarianism in any form and that "the solution which any nation finds for its problems will follow the line of its cultural patterns." It seems to us that Mr. Rogge's defense of American culture showed subtlety as well as courage. By his very vocabulary he proved to the Russians that he is a well-read fellow, and thereby implicitly gave the lie to M. Ehrenberg's description of the United States as a land of uneducated barbarians.

Meanwhile, Professor Albert Einstein, who has hitherto been most generous in permitting his name to be used on the letterhead of almost any organization which purported in a general way to favor the good, the true and the beautiful, has become aware of a considerable difference in the text of a letter he sent to the World Congress and the one given out in Poland. It is something, at least, that the professor was sufficiently shocked by this discovery to have given the proper version of his letter to the American press.

Mr. Wallace's Pretense

Henry Wallace has gone as far as he can go in differentiating himself from his Communist followers without slamming the door in their faces. At Louisville last week he said that he does not want the support of Communists who believe in the violent overthrow of the United States Government. Nor does he want the support of any group which puts its allegiance to some foreign capital first, whether it is Moscow or any other place. Off-hand, that may seem to give Mr. Wallace a more secure footing than he has had before. In principle it divorces him from the subversive doctrines of his more extreme disciples. The difficulty is that Mr. Wallace does not recognize the policy of violence and the adherence to Moscow when the evidence is plainly before his eyes.

Even while the Progressive candidate was condemning violence and loyalty to a foreign regime, he made it clear that he exonerates most of his Communist followers of those practices. "I doubt if any Marxists today," he told reporters, "are as violent as Lincoln and Jefferson were in their day." If Mr. Wallace had suddenly dropped from another planet, he could scarcely have spoken with more naivete as to what is happening in the world today. His discussion of this truly vital issue seems utterly to ignore recent events in Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and other satellite countries, in Greece, Berlin and Korea. If any one fact is well established in the contemporary world it is that communism spreads by violence and suppression of human rights whenever and wherever the Kremlin feels strong enough to extend its dominion. Yet Mr. Wallace rests his bid for public support on the flimsy assumption that this not true, without attempting, so far as we are aware, to disprove the evidence.

His congenial weakness for phantasy may also be noted in his expression of doubt that "any Marxists today are as violent as Lincoln and Jefferson were in their day." We are not aware that Lincoln or Jefferson initiated any aggressive movements to seize political control in other countries. But aside from this is the inexcusable failure to draw any distinction between the methods and objectives of Lincoln and Jefferson on one hand and the rulers of the Kremlin on the other. Whatever blows were struck by Jefferson and Lincoln were for liberty. The whole essence of the Communist movement is the suppression of freedom and the harnessing of the individual for service to the state. Is it a matter of no importance to Mr. Wallace that the present-day revolutionaries with whom he is casting his lot are trying to undo what the great liberators of all ages have accomplished?

The improvement that Mr. Wallace has made in his position before the public is thus very superficial indeed. In order to justify the course he has taken he is insulating himself in a dream world. Apparently he has not yet learned the fundamental lesson that pretending will not turn ugly facts and situations into harmony and peace.

Forgotten Men

About two years ago there was a general outburst of indignation over the revelations of barbarous conditions in many insane asylums and mental hospitals throughout the United States, conditions which rivaled and in some cases almost surpassed those of the worst European concentration camps. The facts became public largely through conscientious objectors who had been sent to work as attendants in such institutions during the war. As far as we can learn, these conditions are for the most part still unremedied, and the probability is that, considering the rapid increase in the incidence of mental disease, they will grow worse rather than better.

The principal obstacle to reform is that under our system of government the insane, unlike almost any other minority group, have no way of influencing public opinion or of exerting pressures on Legislatures. Since insanity is not a pleasant subject, and since the insane are frequently unpleasing objects, there is a general desire to forget them, a desire frequently shared by their relatives. The various programs undertaken under the direct or indirect auspices of psychiatrists have a tendency to become merely programs for the further development and study of psychiatric science. These programs are therefore of no immediate benefit to persons already confined; and even their ultimate benefit as a preventative remedy is a matter of some doubt, since much insanity is apparently due to stresses inherent in the character of modern civilization which are beyond the power of even psychiatrists to correct.

In the past the cause of the insane has found many effective champions, among whom may be mentioned the Quakers in England and such indefatigable crusaders as Dorothea Dix and the late Clifford Beers in the United States. They had, however, the advantage of working at a time when the humanitarian spirit was still running high. The recent revelations, however, are sufficient proof that the reforms they achieved have not been lasting. In many State and county asylums the inmates live under conditions of filth and misery and are subjected to greater brutality and abuse than in the eighteenth century Bedlams and Bicetres.

Moreover, most of those who sincerely desire to remedy conditions and are able to exert some influence to that end, are too preoccupied with other matters to give the problem the attention it demands. The futility of even the best intentioned efforts was illustrated during the last Congress when Senator Morse introduced, without adequate study and at the request of "a group which has been working long and hard on the problem," a bill amending the National Mental Health Act so as to create "a Federal Bureau of Asylums" to undertake semi-yearly inspections of all mental hospitals and institutions receiving Federal funds.

The total absurdity of this bill should have been immediately apparent. First of all, the only custodial institutions for the insane receiving grants from Federal funds are those operated under one division or another of the Federal Government itself, including the St. Elizabeths and Gallinger hospitals. Second, the National Mental Health Act is in no way concerned with the operation of custodial institutions. Third, the efficacy of politically appointed inspectors as instruments of reform is pretty well contradicted by the fact that most States have already laws providing for such inspections. Seven days later, Senator Morse felt obliged to apologize to the Senate for having introduced a bill that was manifestly unconstitutional and to reintroduce it in an amended form.

The episode is illustrative of the American tendency to seek simple remedies to long-standing and complex evils. It seems to us doubtful that the scandal of the insane asylums can be corrected by mere legislation. Even with larger appropriations and adequate buildings and larger salaries for employes, the main problem will remain one of humane and conscientious administration, and a difficult one under any system of political appointments. The only hope apparently lies in an awakening of the public conscience and in the recognition that the insane, as members of the human race, are deserving of at least some of the sympathy now being expressed for other minority groups.

Chained Labor

From Prague comes an interesting report that Czechoslovakia's General Confederation of Labor is engaged in propagandizing a return to a six-day work week. There are plenty of good reasons to support a change to longer hours of labor in a country grappling with the problems of reconstruction. In many American industries during the war, when maximum production was desperately needed, the work week often considerably exceeded 48 hours. The British Labor government some time ago reinstituted a six-day week in order to increase output in its coal mines. What is remarkable about the movement in Czechoslovakia, however, is, first, that it has been initiated by what pretends to be a labor organization and, second, that it is defended on the exceedingly odd ground that the five-day week represents personal interests, the six-day week national interests.

In a free and democratic society, it is presumed that the interest of its members individually coincides with their interest collectively. And public policy is determined, at least theoretically, in accordance with the greatest good of the greatest number. This is to say that the nation is not reckoned something apart from, and above, the individual, pursuing aims and interests of its own, but as an instrument for the advancement of the common interests of individuals. In the societies which are called totalitarian, however, the nation is accorded an independent existence, the supposed interests of which all individuals are expected to serve. Thus the conflict cited by the Czech Confederation of Labor may very well be a real one, resolvable only by the use of force on the part of the nation to coerce compliance.

Commenting on the Czech proposal, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, had this to say: "If any proof were needed that communism and reactionism are synonymous, it was provided today in dispatches that the Communist-controlled Confederation of Labor in Prague is conducting a propaganda campaign to convince the workers of that country they should surrender the five-day week and accept six days." Of course, it is not the projected change from five to six days that provides the proof of reaction but the espousal of it by a labor organization which has in effect become an arm of the state. Mr. Green is well aware of the distinction. "It shows," he went on to say, "no labor organization can be free under communism because it is compelled to subordinate the interests of the workers to those of the Communist Party." Perhaps the best message the AFL could send to the Confederation of Labor in the circumstances is simply, "Workers of Czechoslovakia, disunite! You have nothing to lose but your chains."

"TOWN FOR TRADE"

I, who loved the country lanes,
Am lodging now in town;
Hardly certain when it rains
Or if the sun goes down.

Occasionally thunder's feet,
On a sullen day,
Walk the narrow, high-walled street
In a cautious way;

Or a small, brow-beaten wind
With nothing much to say,
Scours the City Square to find
A locust tree to sway;

Sometimes a wing of shadow falls
Across the window-pane;
A muffled beat assails the walls—
Of traffic throb . . . or rain.

But when sleet gathers lime gray foam
Upon the window-sills,
I would trade this town for the lanes at home,
And the silent, snow-white hills!

"Nailing A Lie"

Your editorial of August 25, dealing with the "conversion" of Mr. Vogel, former Counselor of the Washington Legation of the so-called Romanian People's Republic, refers to "arrivals from iron curtain countries who have hitherto known America only in the image portrayed by Moscow."

How, I ask you, does Mr. Vogel's two years' stay in the United States, prior to his fateful decision, tally with this description?

And how can anyone imagine that, before coming to this country, Mr. Vogel, "a former Social Democrat editor in Romania," could possibly have been aware only of the Kremlin version of the United States?

Furthermore, is it not perfectly legitimate to wonder how Mr. Vogel could have failed to arrive at what are allegedly his present convictions, either at the time when Romanian Social Democrats were required to join the Communists "or else"; or, subsequently, when Romania's form of state and government was fraudulently and forcibly changed; or yet, still more recently, when Mr. Titel Petrescu, head of Romania's Social Democrats, was jailed without even the semblance of legality or pretext. Miss Stein's Reviews

Jane Anderson in her letter of August 25 extolls in unqualified terms the reviews being written by Sonia Stein while Mr. Coe whittles away his vacation north of the border. I have been harboring a distinctly contrary feeling.

One of the condiments long since accepted as necessary (in reviews) is a witty substratem and critics have a mysterious way of souping up their columns to make them interesting in themselves—i. e. apart from their critical appraisal of the movie in question. On this score, Miss Stein's writing seems to fit into the "too, too, too" category which may go better with soups, draperies and social elaborations.

Moreover, she has a yen to expound the entire plot in details. While I don't insist that Miss Stein restrict her comments to "good, bad, or fair to middlin'," it might be one step toward the groove if she spent more effort on critical evaluation and let us poor laymen unravel the plot for ourselves.

Sonia Stein is doing a marvelous job with her theater reviews. The reason for this is, that she is thinking of the people and the average movie fan when she writes her reviews. She comes out and gives what is being shown on the screen and not a lot of talk that bears no semblance to what is actually there.

Veterans' Convention

Your paper shooed the story of the convention celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of the war with Spain to an inside page.

On the fiftieth anniversary of the G. A. R., a grateful Nation, pitched tents at the battle field of Gettysburg, paid the fares and all expenses of those noble heroes. But there has never been a war that compared to 1898 in the affect on the Nation. I served in later wars but I am prouder of having served in 1898 than in any of the others.

I think we deserve better treatment than you have given us. J. GORDON RANKIN.

Federal Discrimination

As a former Federal employe with 13 years of service accredited to my Civil Service record, and, further, as a former columnist and Government news reporter, I wish to join with Lula M. Fields (letter appeared August 24) in registering my protest against the vicious form of discrimination still practiced against Negro job-holders and job-applicants in the Federal service.

A few months ago when I was on a job-hunting expedition, I managed to get a personal taste of the prejudicial run-around and "by-pass" that so many other colored job-seekers are subjected to daily by personnel officers.

This writer has the personal testimonies of a considerable number of qualified Negroes who can attest to having been victims of this discriminatory practice. The Civil Service Commission is apparently helpless to do anything about rectifying this infringement on its merit system during peacetime.

Despite the fact that President Truman has issued a recent directive, requesting all Federal agencies to appoint a fair employment practice officer in an effort to insure fair employment opportunities and promotions for colored persons, agency heads have emasculated the Chief Executive's order by selecting, in most instances, the very personnel directors who are already guilty of discriminatory employment practices.

Denial Of Freedom

The Selective Service System is wrong. It is wrong, first because it is a bulwark of the war system and, second, because it denies men the free living of their lives in peaceable ways of their own choice.

It is true that the law recognizes the right of religious conscientious objectors to war and military training to ask for and get deferment. However, millions of young Americans, including those who may oppose the military system for the wrongness of futility of its methods, but who do not have an acceptable religious background, must either become pawns of the war makers or go to prison with much of their liberty and free pursuit of happiness, in either alternative, denied them.

"Crazy Quilt"

I wish to go on record as objecting to being "scooped". I'm referring to your editorial of August 25 entitled "Crazy Quilt" and specifically to the reference of the Welles-Allen difference in "analysis" I was all prepared to call the facts to your attention and then I read the editorial this morning.

However, all was not lost to me because prior to reading the paper I had dispatched portions of the Allen-Welles articles to the New Yorker with the caption, "You pays your money and You Takes Your Choice". In all modesty I think my caption superior to "Crazy Quilt", and unfortunately more revealing as to the situation in the present day reporting of "facts"

School Auditoriums

The only auditoriums suitable for theatrical use are in the public schools of the city and officials of the Washington Art Center have been conferring with members of the Board of Education, the Board of Recreation and the Recreation Department. We have done this because we presented the Barter Theater at Western High School last year in cooperation with the Recreation Department and wanted to use it this year. As a civic, nonprofit organization which meets the qualifications for use of the schools we expected continuing cooperation from the officials charged with administering them.

We quickly discovered that under the present policy of the Recreation Board—a policy Mr. Wender told me would not be changed—the Armstrong High School auditorium, a colored school, is the only auditorium the board and the Recreation Department would consider making available to us for Barter productions or any other professional, noncommercial theatrical productions. The use of Armstrong auditorium by the colored school system for school events is so heavy that use of it by an outside organization is out of the question.

The Board of Education has been considering since the June hearings a request formulated by many of the city's civic organizations for nondiscriminatory use of school auditorium on a noncompulsory basis. On a basis, that is, of "no one's forcing you to go."

In our discussions with officials of the Board of Education two things have become apparent (1) that the board will pass the ball for determining after hour use of auditoriums back to the Board of Recreation; (2) several members of the board would like to see great living theater presented in the schools.

It is ridiculous for our Nation's capital to have to go begging for a theater because of the "jigaboo" mentality (to quote one of the leading officials concerned with the matter) of some of the officials of the Recreation Board. They have distinguished themselves to date by making school auditoriums available only to those organizations willing to meet their peculiar and disreputable standards of who may and who may not attend a cultural affair in a public tax-built building.

Thrasher Farm Cost

According to many and voluminous accounts of the "face-lifting" of the Thrasher farm, a transformation has been achieved which has increased the value of the farm by $20,000; and this was a product of long and elaborate planning by many persons, contributions by various firms, and a day's work by 500 men.

In no accounts seen by the undersigned has there been noted any computation or estimate of the cost. Should not J. Q. Public be given information on that phase of this demonstration? Might not The Washington Post make a valuable contribution toward intelligent appraisal by procuring (or making) such a computation or estimate, covering (a) the cost of the planning, including value of the time given and amount of money spent (b) value of items contributed (c) value of work of 500 men (d) total of (a) (b) and (c). The Heritage

THE SEEDS OF LIBERTY, by Max Savelle. (Knopf, $6.50.)
TRIUMPH OF FREEDOM, 1775-1783, by John C. Miller. (Little, Brown, $6.50.)

The excitements engendered by the recent testimonies about a Communist conspiracy within the Government of the United States are, I think, indicative of the crisis through which the American imagination is passing. It is somewhat analagous to the crisis into which a man is plunged by the first realization that he has grown old, that his accustomed world has vanished and that the beliefs he has accepted as axiomatic have acquired in the sight of a new generation the character of venerable superstitions. So it is with our political ideas, when we discover they no longer represent the strongest currents of the age. We have been so long accustomed to thinking of our country as a new world, and of ourselves as a youthful people, the very priests of progress and innovation, that it comes as a painful shock to realize that ours is actually the most acient system of government now on earth and that we are guardians of the most conservative political tradition that survives.

These books make it clear that what we call "Americanism," so far as it represents a definite body of political concepts, is pretty largely the product of the eighteenth century mind. This is to say that both the material circumstances and the metaphysical climate in which they were developed have long since vanished. Professor Savelle's book, which conceals a good deal of erudition behind an unfortunate academic jargon and a depressing sociological cant, is concerned with the general direction of American life and thought in the two or three generations preceding the first Continental Congress. Professor Miller, who dealt in a livelier and more colloquial manner with pretty much the same materials in an earlier book called Origins of the American Revolution, now gives us an excellent narrative history of the Revolution itself. Together these works serve to remind us how powerfully the thought of that epoch was governed by the notions of John Locke; indeed, Professor Miller tells us that the doctrines of the Revolution were little more than an exegesis of Locke's two Essays on Government. This, of course, is quite evident in the frequent references in the literature and debates of the period to "the state of nature" and to "natural rights," and so on, and from John Adams' assertion that there is not an idea in the Declaration of Independence that had not "been hackneyed in Congress for two years before," although the late Professor Parrington considered that the fortunate phrase about "the pursuit of happiness," lifted that document far above the narrow horizons of English Whiggery. Professor Savelle, however, indicates that the egalitarian ideas that were already manifesting themselves on the frontier had found a ready-made rationalization in the teachings of Samuel Pufendorf, who appears to have anticipated Rousseau's doctrine of an infallible general will, and found an eloquent expositor in the Congregationalist parson John Wise. However that may be, the dominant influence was certainly Locke.

It is pretty generally agreed, I think, that the philosophy of Locke prevailed in eighteenth century America because it appeared to have been verified by the conditions then existing here, which tended in almost all matters to emphasize the importance of the individual. The vast expanse of lands waiting only to be cleared seemed to afford opportunity an equality of status approximating the state of nature as Locke had defined it. Since then, however, the society of small, independent and self-sufficient freeholders envisaged by Jefferson and the other theorists has, with the successive industrial revolutions, given way to a proletarian democracy, in which the people are replaced by the mass. The changes in economy have been accompanied by changes in the political structure, resulting in steadily greater concentrations of power. Meanwhile, both science and legal philosophy have been leading in direction antagonistic to eighteenth century political concepts; it would be difficult for example to reconcile the doctrine of natural rights with the positivist conceptions of law or the theory of natural goodness with Freudian psychology. I am not of course suggesting that Americanism is historically obsolete, but only that there is need of finding some new philosophical basis for it that would relate it to the world we must inhabit. Anyway, there is some consolation in reflecting that our friends the Marxists find themselves in a position no less embarrassing than ours. If we are children of the eighteenth century, they are children of the late nineteenth century, who are beginning to discover that the value of their materialist dialectic has disappeared with the materialist universe in which it was formulated. I have no doubt whatever that so recently as the later 1930s a great many of our bright young men believed themselves to be like the celebrated Calchas

That in science so expert was, that he Knew well that Troye should destroyed be,

and behaved accordingly. I think the more intelligent of the comrades are beginning to suspect that, unlike Calchas, they may have guessed wrong.

Dr. Sychrava's Reply

A Communication

MR. WEISKOPF from the Czechoslovak Embassy in Washington is right in quoting in his letter of July 30 a letter I sent to a friend of mine on July 1. I arrived in London last June 26 by plane, using the same passport with which I had twice travelled to America. I am safe and sound and getting ready to go on with my work for the Subcommission on Freedom of Information.

Mr. Weiskopf, however, is wrong when he supposes that I was arrested on June 1 while trying to leave the country illegally without a passport. I had with me a passport which was valid until July 11, 1948. I lacked only the special permission prescribed since the February events in Czechoslovakia by the Ministry of Interior.

I did not ask for this special permission because I did not expect to get it. The government of Prague had decided on March 19, just three days before the beginning of the international press conference in Geneva, to reject a proposal made by certain officials of the Ministry of Information to let me go to the Geneva Conference with the Czechoslovak delegation as an expert unbound by discipline of official delegates. They knew that I would not have supported the official line of information adopted at that time.

At the same time I told some members of the government that they were wrong in refusing to send me to the conference, where a statement of mine recommended by the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations ought to be discussed. Mr. Kopecky, the Minister of Information, let me understand with some humor that he wasn't sure whether I would come back.

I see that my attendance at conference would have been awkward because after some two or three days of the new regime which was installed on February 25, at the time when I had just returned from America, a delegate of the new ruling action committee came into my office accompanied by some armed policemen. He installed in my place a young officer bound to his orders. I learned afterward from a notice published in my own paper that I had been given three months leave for reasons of health which naturally I hadn't requested.

TOWARD THE END of May I decided to try to leave the country without attempting to get the special permission newly prescribed. I was not persecuted. I continued my lecturing at the high school of economics in Prague, and, though dismissed from my position of editor, I would have been able to find another occupation to earn my living.

Nevertheless, for political reasons I chose to leave in spite of the uncertainty of conditions which I should meet abroad. I felt, first of all, the need to explain abroad that the apparently inactive behavior of democrats who founded the Czechoslovak Republic under the leadership of T. G. Masaryk, must not be interpreted as resignation, weakness, or even fear of personal risk.

I have been told that I was arrested on the other side of the frontier because of a German guard in American service who had only shown me the way at night in a country I didn't know. They pretended that they had bribed him. At any rate, they could get no evidence of illegal action on my part which would have justified my imprisonment, and they acceded finally to my statement that I was legally free to leave the country since I was an expert of the United Nations.

Having been told that I must not attempt again to leave the country without the permission of the Ministry of Interior, I asked this permission and got it. I applied for a prolongation of my special passport valid until July 11, and got it — until June 21, 1949. In answer to the question of why I was leaving, I pointed to my function as vice chairman of the Subcommission on Freedom of Information and to some recent as well as old functions in different international organizations for human rights and for peace through collective security.

"One more or less—" remarked Mr. Clementis while permitting my application. Mr. Nosek, Minister of Interior, agreed with me when I told him that I wondered if the government was wise in letting out only people who agreed to defend the official line. My absence in Geneva, I said did you more harm than good, and what ought you to be afraid of when I am going on with my work for peace abroad? It was, I guess, this argument which forced the government to release me after four days of imprisonment, and to let me leave the country. The opposite opinion of some circles did not prevail.

As to the possibility, as Mr. Weiskopf says, of my staying on unharmed as did countless other persons in a similar positions, I only want to repeat what I said to the Minister of Interior who suggested the same idea to me: "I don't feel old enough to start putting down my memories. I hope to be more useful to my country as a journalist which in present circumstances I can't be in my own land." He didn't object to this.

AS TO THE behavior of the Czechoslovak delegation at the Geneva conference I would like to point out that my statement on the principles of freedom of information honored by a special resolution of the conference was really approved in advance on January 16 without opposition, during a conference of Czechoslovak journalists and officials of the Ministry of Information before I left for Lake Success to attend the second meeting of the Subcommission on Freedom of Information.

The ony objection to my statement on this occasion was a remark by Mr. Kronek, secretary general of the International Federation of Journalists, saying that it was "too platonic." It was already a hint of the objection made later on at Geneva by the official spokesman of Czechoslovakia that my memorandum "was considered abstract and idealistic with little regard for the present world situation."

It leads me to the main question of the new concept of freedom under the Communist regime from which Mr. Weiskopf expects something as great as the discovery of America by Columbus or even a new Bill of Rights comparable in historical importance to that proclaimed at the beginning of American independence.

I fear that Mr. Weiskopf will be very disappointed in his expectation that the world can be saved by a philosophy which considers that the respect of alien convictions and passion for truth and tolerance do not correspond to the present world situation because they are too abstract and idealistic. I can't agree, and that is the main reason for my now being in London.

Near Riot Disrupts Rally of Wallace at Durham, N. C.

Thurmond."

The pickets were said to be war veterans but some Wallaceites said they were Ku Klux Klansmen.

The pickets had been marching up and down in front of the armory for two hours before Wallace appeared.

One placard read: "We believe in free speech but this is ridiculous."

Another, "Go back where you came from and take Mary with you."

This was a reference to Mary Price, who heads up the Progressive Party forces in North Carolina. Her name figured recently in the spy hearings on Capitol Hill.

After the trouble in the Armory, Stephen Fisher, Wallace's press officer, went to the police authorities and asked for an escort for the candidate. He later quoted the police as saying they couldn't do it.

However, when Wallace finally arrived, a squad of plainsclothesmen escorted him to the stage.

Durham has a population of 90,000, about half white and half Negro. This morning the Durham Morning Herald, in ad editorial, called on the populace to accord Wallace "every possible courtesy."

The fact that he and his followers were in the minority, the editorial said, did not change one whit the rights that were theirs.

"Mr. Wallace is an enigma of the Nation's political life," the editorial continued, "but he is much more consistent in his record of beliefs and practices than many who criticize him . . .

"It is confidently expected that Mr. Wallace's visit to Durham will be marked by no incidents that would bring discredit upon Durham."

Barnstorming through Virginia and North Carolina, the nominee of the Progressive Party earlier taunted the Bourbon reactionaries for their much-used phrase about "the protection of Southern womanhood."

In Richmond, he said that if Thomas Jefferson were alive today he would be a Wallace-for-President man.

The shock-haired Iowan caused very little excitement in Virginia, where his audiences were made up predominantly of Negroes, and there was only one incident which he could regard as a breach of Southern hospitality.

As Wallace was leaving a small rally in Suffolk, he was jeered by some white youths standing on a corner across the street.

"Hey," one yelled, "Joe Stalin's looking for you!"

"Why don't you go down to South Ca'lina?" another cried, apparently having in mind that this State is the home of Gov. J. Strom Thurmond, the State's Rights or Dixiecrat nominee for President.

Wallace apparently didn't hear.

This evening, Wallace and the tip of an Atlantic hurricane hit this North Carolina town at about the same time, both very angry.

Wallace put up for the night at the home of G. W. Logan, a Negro businessman. He and his aides were to have stayed at the Washington Duke Hotel, but he canceled the reservations when he learned that Negroes would be barred.

One of Wallace's secretaries, Miss Edith Roberts, is a Negro.

Wallace opened his Southern tour this morning with a speech in Norfolk before 1000 persons, about 90 per cent of them Negroes.

Virginia has a segregation law which forbids mingling of Negroes and whites in a public hall. The Wallace managers got around that by issuing printed invitations to the rallies in Norfolk, Suffolk and Richmond, thus making them "private."

Actually, most of the invitations were handed out at the door, but law officers of the Old Dominion decided to let it pass.

"Old Jim Crow is taking an awful beating today," said Sanford Berlin, head of the Norfolk headquarters of the Progressive Party.

However, Howard Carwile, an independent candidate for the United States Senate in Virginia, disagreed with this view.

He accused the Wallace people of ducking the issue and of using a subtle and subservient strategy to shield themselves from arrest by rendering technical obedience to Caesar.

"No one," said Carwile, "can test the constitutionality of a law by leaping with joyful humility at a loophole in the law."

Wallace flew down from New York to Washington this morning, and was scheduled to take off from there in a chartered plane at 9:30. There was a delay of an hour, however, and the Iowan spent the time in the National Airport terminal clipping his finger nails and reading papers.

At Norfolk, he was met by Jerry Gilliam, a Negro, who had just been named the Progressive Party's candidate for Congress for that district. Mrs. Virginia Foster Durr, of Alexandria, was nominated with Gilliam as the party's nominee for United States Senator.

Motorcycle police escorted Wallace to the Center Theater, a city-owned enterprise, where the rally was held. First on the stage was Peter Seeger, a troubador, who travels with Wallace. Singing in hill-billy fashion and strumming a guitar, Seeger did a song poking fun at the Republican elephant and the Democratic donkey having the same bit in the mouth. Then Clark Foreman, treasurer of the Progressive Party, made the usual appeal for funds. He started out by asking for contributions of $500 and ended with appeals for silver.

Wallace, in his speech, noted at the outset that it was the Sabbath, and he talked as if he were in a pulpit, quoting extensively from the Bible.

In taking a crack at the reactionaries for using the phrase "the protection of Southern womanhood," Wallace said:

"The real test of the men who say they want to 'protect Southern womanhood' is whether or not they are working and fighting every day in every way to see that no more Southern women die in childbirth than women in the North and West."

In denouncing the Truman Administration's policy vis-a-vis Russia, he said: "We must learn from Jesus and Jefferson. The military strategists of history can give us no answer to the problems of the atomic age."

Flying from Norfolk to Richmond, Wallace was serenaded by his troubador Seeger, who sat in a seat alongside and sang a ballad about the South and its shortcomings.

Talking about Jefferson in the old Lyric Theater in Richmond, Wallace said that if that great patriot were alive today he "would be sitting among us."

"He would find his real home in the fifth decade of the twentieth century in our Progressive Party," Wallace said.

On his arrival in Durham this evening, Wallace was greeted by a party of Negroes and white university students.

The candidate had dinner with the Algonquin Club in a Negro restaurant and then went to the armory, where he called on the Federal Government to advance a billion dollars to the South—half to go for building up industry and the other half for agriculture.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

How Not To Make Policy

THE EARLY EVACUATION of the American zone of Korea was quietly voted by the National Security Council about a month ago. The more honest State and Defense Department policy-makers frankly admit that the decision's ultimate effect will be to throw all of Korea into the expanding Soviet empire. Under the circumstances, this remarkable decision, taken without any public discussion of the grave issues involved and only now disclosed, deserves rather careful study.

Superficially, the decision is in order. Under the U. N. settlement, the United States and the Soviet Union are to withdraw their troops from their Korean zones within 90 days of the establishment of working governments in each zone. But in fact, both the recent decision of the National Security Council and the American management of the Korean problem in the U. N. were the result of a debate among the strategists and planners over whether Korea was worth holding at all.

The conclusion that Korea was not worth holding was reached on three grounds. The occupation costs in the American zone of Korea amount to between 200 and 300 million dollars a year. The Army can ill afford the 24,000 troops now on garrison duty in Korea. And from the standpoint of straight military strategy, Okinawa and the Japanese islands are positions of equal, if not greater value.

THESE ARE PRACTICAL considerations of high importance. They are not very frankly admitted, however. A good many of the responsible policy-makers even speciously argue that perhaps the South Korea regime of Dr. Syngman Rhee will be able to maintain its independence after all. Certain measures to [illegible] are being taken. Before the final evacuation, for [illegible] the American garrison will recruit and train a South Korean constabulary of 40,000 men or more. When the American garrison departs, it will leave its arms behind. And the South Koreans may perhaps be assisted by an American military mission.

But the facts show that these measures are mere gestures which one suspects are primarily designed to save face. The South Korean government is relatively feeble and troubled by a serious problem of Communist infiltration. In North Korea the Soviets have set up an efficient puppet regime. This regime has at its disposal no mere constabulary, but a full dress army variously estimated to number from 60,000 to 250,000 men. The best guess is that the North Korean forces actually total 125,000.

Furthermore, as the expense of our occupation indicates, South Korea is not economically self-sustaining. The South Koreans cannot hope to feed themselves. With the exception of one small power plant, their entire power supply comes from North Korea. Obviously no government can sustain itself against a strong rival government which controls the main food resources, owns the power plants, and possesses three times more military force. After the American evacuation, the Kremlin can take South Korea if and when it chooses, without moving a single Russian soldier.

Then if one digs deeper into the background of the Korean decision, another significant group of facts emerges. The American abandonment of Korea will have an immediate, disastrous psychological and political effect on all the forces of resistance to Communist expansion throughout Asia. Particularly, this will be true in adjacent China, where the National Government of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek is perilously close to collapse.

Yet this politico-psychological factor was only lightly weighed in the Korean decision, and for a very simple cause.

NOT ON KOREA ONLY, but in China, Burma, Malaya, Siam, Indo-China, the Netherlands Indies and the Philippines, the local Communist parties are hard at work in the open. Their armed efforts in China, Burma and Indo-China, at a minimum, seem quite likely to be successful unless counterpressures are soon to be applied. But palsied impotence mark the present approach of the American policy-makers to this huge Asiatic problem, mainly because of the hangover from the petty vanity, political folly and crass disregard for obvious American interests, which characterized American Asiatic policy in wartime.

The main objection to the Korea decision is simply that the issue whether palsy is our only possible Asiatic policy, is going something about Asia. Perhaps to bulk large in the coming political campaign. The Republicans, who are so obviously likely to win, at least want to try to do they may fail. Perhaps the evacuation of Korea might even be included in a constructive program. But it seems outrageous to take this crucial decision now, in the prevailing atmosphere of dank defeatism, when such decisions are quite likely to prejudice any future attempt to turn the tide in Asia.

Who can pay CASH?

VERY few people who build or buy a new home can pay for all of it in cash out of their savings.

Most businesses have the same problem. Some can save enough out of earnings to expand and improve their plants, but many must go to investors for construction money.

In the telephone business the margin of savings is small even in normal times. Today the margin is smaller than ever—insignificant in comparison with the construction expenditures required to meet public demand for service.

A home builder makes a down payment from savings and borrows the rest. We can't make any down payment. All the money must come from investors—part from people who loan us money through purchases of Bell System bonds; the rest from people who buy stock in the business and become part owners.

These investors have faith in the future of the Telephone Company. They entrust their money to us because they believe their investments will be safe and will pay them a fair return.

They invest on faith. We spend on faith. We have faith that people will always want and need good telephone service—and will be willing to pay a fair price for it.

Truman Back Home, Will See Marshall

By The Associated Press

President Truman returned yesterday from a nine-day yachting vacation and arranged a conference today with Secretary of State Marshall to review the international situation.

Mr. Truman was silent on politics and had no comment on a report of the House Un-American Activities Committee accusing him of hampering its inquiry into alleged Communist spying. As a matter of fact, the President said, he was not familiar with the report since he had read only the skeletonized radioed news report furnished him daily aboard the USS Williamsburg.

Mr. Truman talked with reporters as he disembarked from the presidential yacht after it docked at the Naval Gun Factory here about 4 p. m. He looked bronzed and healthy and said everyone aboard agreed "it couldn't have been a better vacation."

He said his presidential campaign itinerary was "in the works" but that he did not expect to be able to announce a definite schedule of speaking engagements until after his return from five Michigan speeches next week.

Presidential Press Secretary Charles G. Ross said he did not know of any other engagements for tomorrow other than that with Secretary Marshall, who usually meets with the President on Monday and Thursday.

States' Tax Revenues Up $1.1 Billion

By The Associated Press

State governments took in $1,100,000,000 more in taxes during fiscal 1948 than they did the previous year, the Census Bureau reported last night.

But the $7,900,000,000 they collected was less than one fifth of the Federal Government's tax take of $41,864,500,000 for fiscal 1948, which ended last June 30. Adoption of new tax levies combined with economic developments—rising prices and wages and increased business activity—to boost the tax collections of the States, the bureau said.

Four States instituted general sales taxes, seven imposed new tobacco taxes. Still further imposts and increases in tax rates also boosted revenue so that not a single State registered a decline in total tax collections from 1947, the bureau said.

General sales taxes provided the biggest single form of State income, $1,500,000,000. Returns from them were up one fourth from fiscal 1947 and were three times as great as their yield in prewar 1940.

Gasoline taxes provided $1,300,000,000, and license charges on motor vehicles and drivers brought in another 600 million dollars.

State income taxes took 500 million dollars from individuals and 600 million dollars from corporations. Liquor sales brought the States 400 million dollars, tobacco taxes another 300 million dollars.

Western States were at the top of the list for taxes per capita. Washington collected an average of $91 for each person, Arizona and California $84 each, Nevada $73 and Colorado $72.

Most Southern States ranked low in per-person amounts, with Alabama and Kentucky on the low end with $37 each.

Sureenough, news of his memorandum was overheard yesterday by 13-year-old Robert Lord Morris, a carrier for The Washington Post, who lives a few doors away at 1523 Newton st. ne. Young Morris had lost the money, collections from some 80 Washington Post subscribers.

And part of it meant the last payment on Robert's bicycle.

Arrest Expected Today in Series Of Farm Fires

Macomb, Ill., Aug. 29 (U.P.)—Deputy Fire Marshal John Burgard said today he hopes "to put the finger" Monday on the arsonist who set the fires that have dogged Charley Willey from farm to farm.

The fires, which burned down Willey's house and two barns, and then popped out at another farm he had moved to, were no longer a mystery to officials.

"The fires were set by an arsonist," Fire Marshal John Craig revealed yesterday. "We know who he is and we're trying to get evidence that will stand up in court."

"We should have something by Monday," Burgard said.

'Vigorous' Indorsement by CIO Planned for Truman, Barkley

By the United Press

The Truman-Barkley ticket is scheduled to get the CIO's indorsement this week.

A CIO spokesman said yesterday the organization's International Executive Board will adopt Tuesday a "vigorous indorsement" of the Democratic presidential and vice presidential candidates.

A Republican spokesman discounted the prospective CIO action and last week's formation of a pro-Truman committee by AFL union leaders on the grounds that "we wouldn't get those votes anyhow."

The CIO indorsement of President Truman will be backed up with an intensive congressional campaign to retaliate against the GOP-controlled Eightieth Congress for its enactment of the Taft-Hartley law.

Mr. Truman will make his own bid for labor support when he opens his campaign Monday with a series of Labor Day speeches in Michigan. He will make brief speeches in Grand Rapids, Lansing, Pontiac and Flint, and address a rally in Detroit sponsored by the AFL and CIO.

The Republican Party announced yesterday that its presidential campaign also will be opened in Detroit next week, with a speech by Harold E. Stassen, an unsuccessful contender for the GOP presidential nomination. Herbert Brownell, jr., campaign manager for the GOP Dewey-Warren ticket, said Stassen will "answer the Labor Day address which Mr. Truman is scheduled to deliver in Detroit."

The Democratic National Committee announced that other Labor Day speeches will be made by nine other party big-wigs.

They include Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin, Akron, Ohio; Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan, Fairbault, Minn.; Attorney General Tom Clark, Des Moines, Iowa; Secretary of the Army Kenneth C. Royal, Birmingham, Ala.; Undersecretary of Labor John W. Gibson, Duluth, Minn.; Senator Claude Pepper, Boynton Beach, Fla.; Senators James E. Murray and Harley M. Kilgore, Great Falls, Mont., and Senator J. Howard McGrath, Rhode Island.

11-Year-Old 'Lost Horizon' Has Cast Still Worth Seeing

By Sonia Stein

Shangri-la has become so much a part of our language, it would seem that anybody who missed "Lost Horizon" when it was first released by Columbia 11 years ago would want to catch up with it this week while it is at the Hippodrome.

Used in jest by President Roosevelt to name the secret base from which planes bombed Tokyo, Shangri-la actually has no meaning. James Hilton, author of the book, "Lost Horizon," dreamed it up as a suitable name for an imaginary Utopian area in the mountains of Tibet with which his novel was concerned. "La" means mountain fastness in the Tibetan language; shangri means nothing at all, as far as Hilton knows.

In Hilton's story, a handsome Britisher in the foreign service in China is kidnaped with some others in a plane and taken to a luxurious place in the heart of the snow-capped Tibetan mountains. The entire Shangri-la valley is warm and fertile and all its people are content and peaceful. They are also almost immune to the ravages of time.

Conway, the British diplomat, learns that the whole state was founded and presided over by a Belgian priest. He is then, after more than 200 years of life as a lama, ready to die, but only after turning his work over to Conway, whose books he has admired.

Conway is willing to stay in this peaceful place as are three of the others who were aboard the plane when they were kidnaped.

But Conway's brother is determined to get get back home at any cost, and eventually persuades the sorely disillusioned Conway that the high lama is a madman, and that the story about people living unusually long at Shangri-la is a lie.

The two brothers and a Russian girl who has been rescued from the snowy mountains sometime previously, set out with native guides to get back to the outside world.

When the Russian girl abruptly turns into an old woman outside the protective area of Shangri-la, Conway realizes that the lama had not lied to him, and that Shangri-la is indeed a paradise on earth.

Lost alone in the mountains after the guides are caught in an avalanche, and his brother has committed suicide, Conway finds his way to civilization. But as soon as he has recovered from his brutal journey, and from a temporary loss of memory, Conway makes his way back to Shangri-la, and a beautiful young girl he left behind him there.

As a picture, "Lost Horizon" is fascinating to watch. The architecture and interior appointments of the buildings of Shangri-la are extremely pleasing. The actors are all competent and several of them are handsome as well.

The story is mysterious, full of suspense and unexpected turns. But apart from that it has nothing to recommend it—unless you, like Hilton, believe a society Utopian in which one part of the population is servant and the other part master.

Hilton even thoughtfully provided a young lady of impeccably pale complexion (she'd been rescued from the mountains as a baby when her explorer parents died) so Conway need not marry a Tibetan. Can't disturb the status quo just for a little old Utopia, you know.

The cast is what makes "Lost Horizon" worth seeing now and probably 20 years from now. Ronald Colman is a superb Conway. Sam Jaffe received unstinted critical praise for his performance as the ancient lama when the picture was first released, and yet Colman does an equally sensitive job in his scenes with Jaffe. The showmanship—restrained and yet effective—of these scenes is to be highly commended. Undoubtedly Frank Capra's direction was responsible for many of the best touches in the film.

H. B. Warner never had a happier assignment than he has here—using his long-fingered hands to his heart's content, as chief assistant to the lama. Jane Wyatt and John Howard are a handsome pair to add to any film. Miss Wyatt plays Conway's Utopian love, and Howard is his brother. Margo, Edward Everett Horton, Thomas Mitchell and Isabel Jewell are also prominent and helpful in the cast.

A new Paramount film will be given a sneak preview at the Apex Theater tonight. "Easter Parade" is the picture being shown on the regular schedule. The new film will be screened immediately following the "Easter Parade" showing that begins at 8:30 p. m. There is no extra charge for the preview.

Richard L. Coe is on vacation. His column, "One on the Aisle," will be resumed on his return.

1 Killed, 5 Injured As Auto Rams Tree

A 22-year-old Washington motorist was killed and his five passengers were injured, one critically, early yesterday when his car ran off Crain hwy., seven miles north of Annapolis.

Other early Sunday morning accidents in nearby Maryland included a series of collisions on Livingston rd. beyond the District line involving seven vehicles.

Fatally hurt in the Crain hwy. accident was James Paul Bronson, 1356 E st. se., who died at 9:50 a. m. in Annapolis Emergency Hospital, less than six hours after his coupe left the road and rammed a tree near Anderson's Corner. Police said he apparently had dozed at the wheel.

In critical condition from the same accident was Jack Wilson, 19, of 318 F st. nw., who suffered a possible skull fracture. Other passengers hospitalized but not considered in serious condition were the dead man's brother, Ernest, 20; Robert Fillman, 18, of 4111 72nd ave., Landover Hills, Md., his brother, Raymond, 19, and Burton R. Crump, 21, of 1508 Ridge pl. se.

2 Automobiles Collide

The Livingston road mishaps were preceded, police said, by the head-on collision of two automobiles operated by Joseph Marosy, 2286 Owens rd. se., and Charles Lincoln, 40, of 8450 Old Fort rd.

George Moreland, Broad Creek, Md., attempting to pass the damaged autos, ran into the dislodged hood of Marosy's car, police said. A moment later, traffic investigators said, both Marosy's and Moreland's cars were struck by a truck which then plunged over an embankment and was demolished.

The truck driver, James Arthur Holt, 37, of Indian Head, was released from Gallinger Hospital after treatment for head injuries and a cut of the left arm.

Three more cars were added to the pile-up before the roadway was cleared, police said. They included one operated by Howard Jones, 4321 Halley's ter. se., which police said caromed off Marosy's car and struck the parked automobile of Frank Powell, 7355 Old Fort rd., and the final collision when an automobile driven by Richard Mickey, 5407 9th st. nw., ran into the rear of Jones' car.

Reckless Driving Charged

Marosy and Lincoln were charged with reckless driving by colliding, and released in their own recognizance. Jones was charged with reckless driving and operating without a license, and held in $1000 bond. Holt was charged with reckless driving and operating under the influence of intoxicants, and held in $1000 bond.

Hearings were set for Friday, in Upper Marlboro Police Court.

Two separate motorcycle mishaps also occurred in nearby Maryland early yesterday. In one, Lois Simmons, 1223 N st. nw., was taken to Casualty Hospital in undetermined condition when the cycle on which she was riding double ran off Marlboro pike four miles north of Upper Marlboro. The motorcycle driver, Frank Mazzio, a Marine, escaped with bruises.

In the second motorcycle mishap, Clarence Carrick, 5102 Marlboro pike, was hurt seriously when he lost control of his cycle at Mellwood, Md. He was admitted to Casualty Hospital at 4:30 a. m.

Mrs. Gardner Luce Hurt

Bryan McKenzie, Marine, of Quantico, Va., whose car ran off the road at 6 a. m. in the 6800 block of Central ave., near Seat Pleasant, Md., was unhurt, but a passenger, Miss Catherine Painter, 20, of 1320 S st. ne., suffered cuts and bruises. She was treated at Casualty Hospital.

In a late Saturday traffic accident, Mrs. Galien McLemore Luce, 38, of 3004 Q st. nw., chairman of the Washington Opera Guild, suffered a concussion and body injuries. Mrs. Luce was en route with her husband, Gardner Luce, to a party in their honor at the home of Mrs. J. J. Mack, 4355 Forest le. nw. Their car collided with another operated by Dr. Norman P. Scala, 54, of 4517 Butterworth st. nw., also en route to the party, police said.

Mrs. Luce declined hospital treatment but was confined to her home under care of her own physician. She and her husband were scheduled to leave for Europe next week for a two-month vacation, and the party was to be a farewell send-off.

Britain Rules Out U. N. On Colonial Empire

London, Aug. 29 (U.P.).—Britain took the position today that the United Nations has no legal right to supervise or control affairs of the British Colonial empire.

The Colonial Office issued a memorandum in preparation for the Thursday meeting in Geneva of the UN's special committee on colonial affairs.

Divorce Evil' Growth Hit By Michaux

Elder Lightfoot Solomon Michaux last night celebrated the tenth anniversary of his Griffith Stadium revivals with an attack on the evils of divorce.

Michaux

He pointed out that the 400,000 divorces granted in 1946 jumped to 620,000 in 1947 and asserted that many of the divorces are the result of lust mistaken for love.

An audience of several thousand heard the sermon

J. P. Callahan of Marines Drowns

A 20-year-old Marine Corps Reservist and graduate of McKinley Tech High School here was drowned Saturday near Camp Lejeune, N. C., where he was on training maneuvers with the Fifth Marine Battalion.

The body of Pfc. John Paul Callahan, 509 6th st. ne., was discovered about 10 a. m. yesterday near Onslow Beach, N. C., the family was notified by Lieut. Col. John E. Fondahl, commander of the Fifth Battalion. Called Saturday, Fondahl said Callahan had been missing since 5:40 p. m. Saturday. He had gone on a swimming party at Onslow Beach, he said.

Callahan, who had been employed as a service repairman by Felt & Tarrant Comptometer Co., was unable to swim, members of the family said. He left here August 22 for the two-week training period at Camp Lejeune.

Born in Bridgeville, Pa., Callahan was graduated from McKinley High School in 1946. He worked for the Bates Duplicating Co. as a mimeograph operator until about three months ago.

He leaves his mother, Mrs. Mary M. Callahan of the 6th st. address, a sister, Mrs. Marie Costello, of 800 Crittenden st. ne., and a brother, Sergt. Eugene R. Callahan, on active duty with the Fifth Marine Corps Reserve Battalion here.

The body will be returned to the District Tuesday and services tentatively have been scheduled for Thursday.

A touch and you GO— that's DYNAFLOW!

Yes, it boils down to just about that.

You start your engine, set a lever — and from then on your treadle foot takes over.

You press the accelerator — and move softly and smoothly away.

You speed up, slow down, halt completely — and your right foot alone, operating gas treadle and brake, does it all.

How come? Simply because Dynaflow Drive* is the one passenger car drive in America that gets completely away from gears which function in a series of fixed stages.

Changes in the way oil flows, instead of changes in gears, adjust your engine power to your driving requirements.

Whether you are starting out, climbing a hill, surging past others or cruising easily, there's nothing for you to do or think about except feed enough gas.

For very fast starts, extreme pulls, reserve braking power, you flick the selector lever — and your engine seems suddenly to double in size.

For parking, there is a very special setting, exclusive to Dynaflow Drive, that rigidly locks rear wheels and prevents rolling when you leave your car on a grade.

Even rough and chattery roads are made smoother by power that flows along through a cushion of oil — your whole car is "sweeter" in its feel, far silkier in its actions.

Quite rightfully is Dynaflow Drive called the most important motoring change since the self-starter.

It's a basically different way of transmitting power — and one you should know about firsthand.

See what your Buick dealer can do about arranging that for you. The merest sample of Dynaflow magic will make you want to place an order with him, whether or not you have a car to trade!

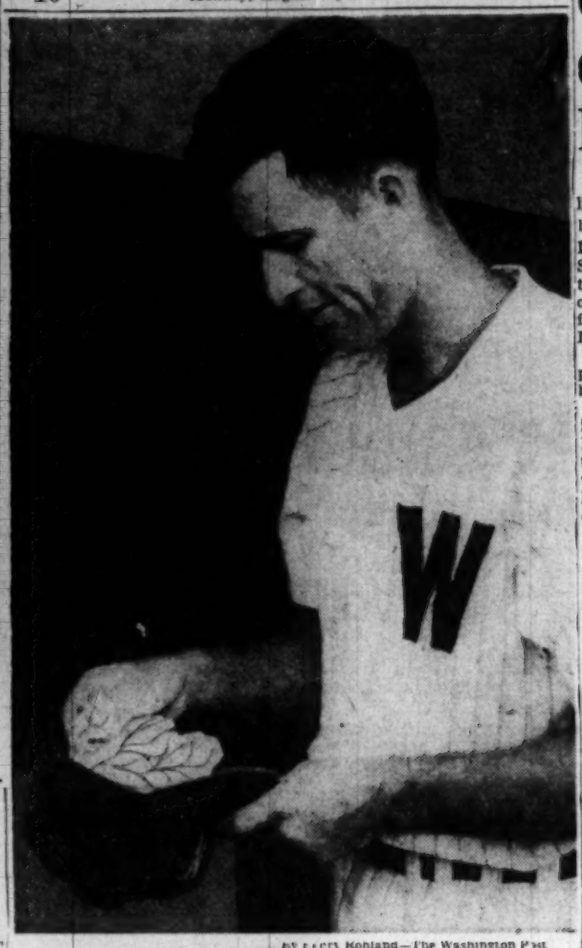
Dodgers Win Pair, Move Into Lead as Braves Lose Twice; Nats Break Even With Indians; Yanks and Bosox Also Split

THIS IS AN ART—Despite all the protective equipment an umpire wears, Art Passarella gets more than his share of injuries. Yesterday he was hit on the ankle by a foul tip from the bat of Eddie Yost while working behind the plate in the first game of the Nat-Cleveland doubleheader at the Stadium. He was removed to Garfield Hospital where X-rays disclosed nothing more than a bruise. He returned to work third base in the second game



By Leroy Rohland—The Washington Post

"MICKEY IS A CABBAGE HEAD"—Taking a leaf (of cabbage) from Mother Nature's medical book, First Baseman Mickey Vernon and other Nat players, have found a way to beat the heat. Trainer "Doc" Lentz invented the idea of placing a large head of cabbage in a pail of ice water and having the players put a large leaf in their caps as they take the field with the ice water trickling down their necks. Vernon (above) is demonstrating. Now everybody is calling everbody a "cabbage head" at Griffith Stadium

Bums Bounce Cards, 12-7, 6-4; Robinson Has Big Day

St. Louis, Aug. 29 (AP).—Brooklyn took over first place in the battle royal for the National League pennant by defeating the St. Louis Cardinals, 12-7 and 6-4, today before 33,826, largest crowd of the season here, while Boston's faltering Braves dropped two to Pittsburgh.

The double-barreled triumph put the Dodgers ahead of Boston by three percentage points.

A pinch single by Arky Vaughan in the tenth inning drove in Pete Reiser with the deciding run in the nightcap. George Shuba scored when Catcher Del Wilber fumbled Enos Slaughter's throw to the plate on the play.

Stan Musial had put the Cardinals back in the game temporarily with a two-run triple to the right center field wall in the ninth to tie the score.

Jackie Robinson, the Negro star, paced the Dodgers in the first game with a homer, triple, double and single.

Big Hugh Casey, called in to relieve Rex Barney in the ninth, received credit for the victory in the nightcap while George Munger, the third Redbird hurler, was the loser.

The Dodgers knocked out Starter Howie Pollet in the sixth with a three-run uprising. A single by Robinson, a double by Pewee Reese and an intentional walk set the stage for a two-run single by Carl Furillo. After Harry Brecheen relieved Pollet, Gil Hodges singled in Bruce Edwards.

A triple by Furillo and a double by Hodges in the fifth inning gave the Dodgers their first counter in the contest.

Early's Hit Off Feller Beats Tribe In 2d, 5-2

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Relief pitcher Bob Feller was just that yesterday.

He relieved Cleveland of a 2-0 lead by pitching a three-run double to Jake Early and the Nats won the second game of the twin bill, 5-2.

The Indians racked up Kuhel's brats in the opener, 6-0, as Bob Lemon scored his eighteenth victory and his ninth shutout with a fancy three-hit production.

With the league-leading Red Sox and the second-place Yankees also splitting double-headers, Cleveland remained in third place, two back of Boston and a half game behind the Yanks.

Wynn's First Win in Two Months

Early's drive to the base of the wall in right field enabled Early Wynn to register his first victory since June 25 when he beat these same Indians. To score his eighth success, Wynn limited the Tribe to eight hits while the Nats got seven off four Indian flingers.

Early and Feller entered the scene simultaneously in the sixth inning, a few minutes after play had been resumed following a 14-minute delay on account of rain.

Specs Klieman, who had relieved Starter Don Black earlier in the same inning, walked Eddie Yost to load the bases. He was permitted to retire at this point and Feller took over with two away and the Indians ahead, 2-0.

He swished over two quick strikes and a ball on Early, who was batting for Al Evans, but Jake pickled his next delivery over the head of Walt Judnich who was playing a shallow right field at the time. Jake's blow delivered Ed Stewart, Sherry Robertson and Yost, each on base with walks.

Pitcher Wynn followed with a single to left, but Early was nabbed at the plate.

The Nats got their final two runs in the seventh off Bob Muncrief. A walk to Gil Coan and Larry Doby's error on Robertson's single produced the first score and Mickey Vernon singled in Robertson with the second run.

The Indians had tied up a 1-0 lead against Wynn in the second inning on Doby's single and a double by Eddie Robinson.

The Tribe made it 2-0 in the third without a hit. Lou Boudreau walked, stole second and went to third as Evans threw into center field and scored on Gordon's fly. They got only one man to second base after that.

Wind Threatens Game

The fifth inning of the nightcap was an afternoon's drama in itself for the 20,586 customers. The field was littered with paper and scorecards blown out of the stands by a brief windstorm which threatened to halt activities then and there.

Leading 2-0, the Indians wanted to get the Nat half of the inning in and make the game official, but they almost came a cropper then. Mark Christman opened with a double. Yost popped up, but Evans walked as the wind became stronger and the umpires were on the verge of calling the game.

Wynn sent a perfect double play ball to Gordon which the Indian second baseman booted and the stands were in an uproar. Coan and Kozar, however, ended the

49ers Crush Buffalo, 35-14 Before 33,946

San Francisco, Aug. 29 (AP).—San Francisco's high scoring '49ers today opened the All-America conference professional football season here with a 35-14 victory over the Buffalo Bills before a crowd of 33,946.

Led by left-handed Quarterback Frankie Albert, whose field generalship and accurate passing were combined in a brilliant, one-man display, the '49ers scored in the first period and swamped the Easterners with a three-touchdown attack in the second quarter.

Buffalo reached scoring turf in the second period but went off the field at halftime completely outclassed and trailing by a 28-7 count.

George Ratterman quarterbacked Buffalo to a third-period score but San Francisco came back in the final period for another touchdown to make their initial show of the 1948 season a convincing one.

The lineups:

Buffalo—Ends, Baldwin, Gibson, Mazza, Comer, Kosikowski, Morton, O'Connor; tackles, Kearn, Carpenter, Armstrong, Kissell; guards, Lahar, Pirro, Hirsch, King, Scott; centers, Prewitt, Bartolo; backs, Ratterman, Mutryn, Steuber, Kulbitski, Smith, Bumgardner, Rykovich, Gompers, Tomasetti, Terlep, Schnette, Schneider.

San Francisco—Ends, Schoener, Beals, Brian Howell, Maloney; tackles, Bryant, Woodenberg, Mike, Collier; Land; guards, Clark, Grzich, Cox, Matteson; centers, Williams, Elston; backs, Albert, Strzykalski, Eshmont, Standlee, Cason, Hall, Vetrano, Mastrangelo, Perry, Lillywhite, Sullivan, Carr, Wallace, Crowe.

Buffalo	0	7	7	0—14
San Francisco	7	21	0	7—35

Touchdowns—Mutryn, O'Connor, Shoener (2), Strzykalski, Perry, Point after touchdown—Armstrong, 2 (placekicks), Vetrano, 5 (placekicks).

Yanks, Bosox Split Twin Bills

Boston Wallops Browns, 10 to 2 Then St. Louis Turns Tables, 12-4

Boston, Aug. 29 (AP).—Home runs decided both games as the Boston Red Sox and St. Louis Browns split a double-header today before a 27,522 crowd.

The American League leaders won the opener, 10-2, and then were subjected to a 20-hit attack while dropping the nightcap, 12-4.

Joe Dobson, who had been seeking his fourteenth win for almost a month, was Boston's first-game starter and he had little to worry about after Ted Williams belted a three-run homer, his twenty-third, and Birdie Tebbetts uncorked a grand-slammer against Carl Drews and Bryan Stephens in the first inning.

The second game was just about as one-sided. Lefty Mickey Harris was clubbed for a homer by Al Zarilla, the second Brownie to face him, and after he gave up three consecutive singles and a walk, Catcher Johnny Moss slugged him for a three-run homer to boost the Browns into a 5-0 lead.

Earl Johnson, another southpaw, then took over and Johnny Lund banged him for the circuit with Zarilla and Whitey Platt on base in the second frame.

George Fazio, Mangrum Tie; Playoff Today

Salt Lake City, Aug. 29 (AP).—George Fazio of Conshohocken, Pa., and Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago tied for the championship of the $12,50 Utah open golf tournament today with 14-under-par totals of 274 for the 72.

They will play off for the championship tomorrow over 18 holes.

Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, Tenn., and Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif., tied for third with 277's.

The playoff at 2 p. m. tomorrow will decide which gets $2150 first money and who has $1550 for second place.

Bom Hamilton, Landover, Md., and Skip Alexander, Lexington, N. C., earned $700 apiece by coming in next with 278's. Dick Metz, Virginia Beach, Va., and George Schneiter, Ogden, Ut., followed with 279's, food for $520 each.

Bob Hamilton, Landover, Md., and Skip Alexander, Lexington N. C., earned $700 apiece by coming in next with 278s. Dick Metz, Virginia Beach, Va., and George Schneiter, Ogden, Utah, followed with 279s, good for $520 each.

Packers Beat Giants, 7 to 0

Minneapolis, Aug. 29 (AP).—A final-period rally and a 41-yard touchdown run by Ralph Earhart, Green Bay Packer back, gave the Packers a 7 to 0 win over the New York Giants in their National Football League exhibition game here today. Earhart converted for the extra point.

The game was played for Minneapolis Catholic Charities with a sell-out crowd of 14,000.

The Giants and Packers battled through the first three periods without any serious scoring threats. The Giants were unable to click on their aerial attacks as the Packers smeared the Giants passer, Paul Governali. Paul Walker, an end, was a standout in the Giant defense.

Berea, Ohio, Aug. 28 (U.P.).—The Cincinnati, Ohio, team won the third annual National Junior Olympics at Baldwin-Wallace Field today for the third straight time.

AAU Senior Swim Tonight

Ambassador Swimming Club looms as a topheavy favorite to take team honors tonight at Takoma Park pool in the District of Columbia A. A. U. senior outdoor meet. Four men's and an equal number of women's titles will be at stake in the water show, which opens at 8 p. m.

The men will battle for titles in the 100-yard freestyle, 220-yard breaststroke, 100-yard backstroke and a brand-new event, the 400-yard freestyle relay.

Women's championships will be established in the freestyle, breaststroke and backstroke events, all over the 100-yard course, and the 200-yard freestyle relay.

Macks Beat Chisox, 5 to 4 Then Lose, 7-2

Philadelphia, Aug. 29 (AP).—The Chicago White Sox snapped a five-game Philadelphia Athletics' winning streak today by clubbing out a 7-to-2 victory in the second game of a doubleheader.

Carl Scheib pitcher and batted the A's to a 5-to-4 win in the opener.

A crowd of 12,151 saw Phil Marchildon coast along on a 1 to 0 lead in the nightcap before Shortstop Jimmy (Skeeter) Webb bobbled a perfect double play ball to pave the way for Chicago's three-run rally in the eighth. The Sox then continued their attack on Alex Kellner and Bob Savage.

Scheib won his own game in the eighth inning of the opener when he tripled and came across on Sam Chapman's single.

Reds Take Two From Giants by 3-2

Cincinnati, Aug. 29 (AP).—A downpour flooded out the second game of a New York Giant-Cincinnati Red doubleheader today, but Cincinnati won both games by identical scorces of 3 to 2.

Danny Lithwhiler's pinchhit single in the ninth provided the first game victory. The Reds were leading 3 to 2 in the last of the fifth and had two men on base when the second game was called. The defeats extended the Giants' loss streak to six.

Barney Done With Serious Competition

Barney Welsh yesterday tucked away his sixth Middle Atlantic tennis title with a four-set victory over Jim Thackara, 6—4, 1—6, 7—5, 6—2, at the Columbia Country Club.

Immediately after the match, Welsh announced to the gallery of 1000 that he had just played his last "serious" tennis match.

Welsh took Thackara in the same number of sets as he did in their 1947 finals of the Middle Atlantic.

Jim Wins First Service

Thackara started off the first set by winning his service, 60-0. From then on the set settled down to a seesaw of volleying, both players content to wait on the other's errors.

With Thackara ahead, 4-3, Welsh started drifting toward the net and took the next three games for the set.

The second set was decided in the fourth game, when Welsh double-faulted at game point and dropped behind, 3-1. Thackara's hanging chop shots drew little response from Welsh thereafter and Thackara took the set, 6—1.

Thackara quickly went ahead in the third set, 2—1, but Welsh broke through service in the fourth game and won the fifth also to forge ahead, 3-2.

Thackara's chop shots began dropping dead again in the sixth and won the game for him. For the next four games neither could win his own service.

Thackara Wilts

With the set knotted, 5—5, in the eleventh game Welsh started concentrating on the tactics that eventually brought him the championship. Like the greenest novice, Barney began returning Thackara's volleys with soft, lazy lobs. Thacgkara, over-anxious ao kill the "setups," muffed them time after time.

Later, Thackara tried to lob with Welsh, but his patience invariably ran out before Welsh's did.

It was the same story in the fourth set after Thackara won Barney's service in the first game. Welsh varied his lobs with low forehand passing shots to Thackara's overworked backhand. This was an unbeatable combination when added to the three aces which Barney batted across in the set.

The match lasted two-and-one-half hours, halting every two games for ice water dousings and once, between the third and fourth sets, for a shower and a change of clothes.

Welsh's curtain speech surprised the audience. The 37-year-old Rockville lawyer pointed out that it was 18 years since his first major District victory, the Public Parks Tournament of 1930, and he was now in "the twilight" of his career.

He thanked his mother and father for "knowing when to keep quiet on the courts" and several friends from Washington and Rockville who guided his career.

Rain canceled the doubles finals between Robin Hippenstiel and Dave Johnsen and Eddie Miller and Charley Channing. It will be on Tuesday afternoon at 4:30.

Wehrle Ousted From Amateur

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 29 (AP).—Wilford Wehrle of Louisville, Ky., winner of numerous sectional honors, was declared ineligible today on the eve of the opening of the forty-eighth National Amateur Golf Tournament.

The executive committee of the United States Golf Association announced in a brief statement that Wehrle "has violated the definition of an amateur golfer by lending his name for the advertisement of golf equipment."

Wehrle, who had qualified at Chicago with 142, was on hand and ready to swing into action tomorrow when 82 first-round matches will be crowded between dawn and dusk at the Memphis Country Club. Told of the ruling, he returned home.

Hise place in the field was alloted to Gush T. Moreland of Peoria, Ill., a former Walker Cup member, who meets W. L. Goodloe, jr., of Valdosta, Ga.

The USGA decision came as no great surprise since the group had announced earlier that Wehrle's status was under study. The Kentucky shotmaker, former Western amateur champion, works for Reynolds Metal Co., in Louisville, maker of aluminum heads for golf clubs.

City Police Issue Challenge to Park Force But Pistol Champs Offer Placque as Answer

By Alfred E. Lewis
Post Reporter

The United States Park Police pistol team which outshot the Metropolitan Police team at International police matches, August 22, has a challenge on its hands.

Lieut. Sheldon McGee, captain of the Metropolitan team, said yesterday he wants to shoot the match over again.

"We'll shoot with them anytime they want to come down here," McGee challenged, and his sincerity belied any sour grapes. "We had only two of our regular team members shooting in that match," McGee said.

"Now that Johnny Layton is back from the Olympic games, I know we can win." (Lieut John Layton of the Metropolitan Police Department was a member of the United States Olympic Pistol Team.)

Capt. Mark Raspberry, chief of the Park Police, had a different view.

"If they don't believe we are champs of the District, they can come down here and look at the plaque we won, which says so," Raspberry replied to the challenge.

"I don't think we ought to have a special match to satisfy Lieutenant McGee. He sent a team up there and I think the record speaks for itself."

The matches held at Teaneck, N. J., were part of the Seventeenth Annual International Police Pistol Matches in which 200 teams competed.

Park Police, with a score of 1182 out of a possible 1200, ranked fourth in the whole match. Only one other police department team beat them. New York scored 1193 to take first place and two Marine Corps teams took second and third places with 1189 and 1186 points, respectively.

There was an individual trophy for each State participating. Shooting for the District of Columbia title were the Park Police, White House Police, and Metropolitan Police teams, made up of four men each.

White House was second with 1176 points, and Metropolitan Police third with 1169.

Metropolitan Police won the trophy the previous two years, but Captain Raspberry thinks their winning days are over. "With a little more practice and encouragement, I think we can beat the New York team next year," he said.

Plumbers Take Crown

Merchandising Plumbers locked up the City Unlimited League's second half championship yesterday with a 9-3 victory over Griffith Consumers in the East Ellipse.

Joe Murphy's three singles and Warren Erhardt's relief pitching earned the ninth straight win for the unbeaten Plumbers, who meet the Northeast Body Works, first half champions, in the first of a three-game title series next Sunday.

Bornstein and Son, which would have had a chance at the title if the Plumbers had lost yesterday, came through with a 6-5 victory over Elite Restaurant. Singles by Bernie Myles and Duck David drove in the two winning runs in the seventh.

Northeast Body Works, limbering up for next week's playoff opener, belted Southeast Merchants,12-0 behind the five-hit pitching of Lefty Paul Schaefer. Jack Hoffman slapped out a triple and two singles, driving in three runs and scoring three.

Lee's Tavern Suffers First Defeat, 6-4

First-place Lee's Tavern suffered its first defeat of the Prince Georges Suburban League second half yesterday with Bladensburg applying the beating, 6-4, at Hyattsville.

Tommy Reed and Tommy Thompson shared mound honors for the Blades as they limited Lee's to five hits. Mouse Mally's grand slam homer was also instrumental in pulling Bladensburg up into a second-place tie with Snug Harbor. Lee's has a 5-7 record, Bladensburg and Snug Harbor, 4-2 each.

Snug Harbor's fourth victory came yesterday in a 4-2 decision over Mount Rainier at Snug Harbor. In the other league game, Triangle nosed out Greenbelt, 4-3, at Triangle.

Firemen Play Sacred Heart In City Sandlot Semifinals

The District Fire Department, Eastern Recreation League champion, plays Sacred Heart, Northern Recreation titlist, in the semifinals of the City Sandlot championship tournament at 4:30 p. m. today on the South Ellipse.

Each has lost one game, so today's loser will be eliminated. The winner will meet once-beaten Merchandising Plumbers for the title Tuesday.

The championship team will represent Washington in the All-American Amateur Baseball Association's unlimited tournament September 8 at Harrisburg, Pa.

Al Berling, former Gonzaga High pitcher, hurled a five-hitter to lead the Flying Clouds to a 13-3 win over the Virginia White Sox yesterday at Bailey's Cross Roads. He also chipped in with a double and three singles.

Curtis Disharoon's two-run single in the tenth gave River Terrace a 4-2 triumph over Glendale at Glendale. Bob Miller, who struck out 10, received credit for his tenth victory.

Falls Church defeated Groveton, 9-3, at Falls Church to earn the Fairfax Junior League championship in two games. In the first of the best-of-three-game series Saturday, Falls Church won, 28-3.

The Takoma Decorators split an American Girls Softball League double-header with the Perth Amboy, N. J., Cardinals at Hempstead, Long Island. Takoma won the first game, 5-1, behind Jerry Fiorello's one-hit pitching.

Takoma was held to two hits by Ace Adams and lost the nightcap, 2-0.

Potomac Ties For Lead, 7-4

Joe Wells' hitting and pitching paced Potomac to a 7-4 win over Rockville yesterday and boosted Potomac into a tie with Colesville for first place in the Montgomery County League.

Colesville, in first place for two months, suffered its second loss in 15 games, an 8-5 setback to Bethesda. The games were played at Bethesda and Potomac, respectively.

Wells, former Georgetown University standout, pitched four-hit ball for Potomac, and started a four-run Potomac rally in the fifth inning. An error, and singles by Gene Taylor, Red Bladen and Chet Diomi completed the big rally.

Charlie Pugh stopped Colesville with five hits, striking out nine in the seven-inning game. Don Dunnington drove in four Bethesda runs with three hits. Sandy Spring beat Wheaton, 7-4, at Wheaton in a game which had no bearing on the first division standings.

Fairfax Wins League Title

Fairfax and Forestville clinched the Eastern and Western Fairfax County League titles yesterday and earned the right to open a three-game county championship series next Sunday.

A five-run first inning launched Fairfax on its decisive 7-4 triumph over Vienna at Fairfax. Vienna's starting pitcheer, Gene Gould, gave up six walks in the big first and was touched for two hits by Larry Fones in the same frame. Fairfax's Eastern League record was 9-3.

Ralph Gentry knocked in five runs with four hits to pace Forestville over Lincolnia, 7-3, in the Western League's deciding game. Forestville has a 12-2 record.

Cloudburst Breaks Up Cloverleaf Golf Tournament After Bowie Turns in 69

Six local pros and their club, senior and ladies champions were caught in yesterday's cloudburst while competing in Columbia's annual Cloverleaf tournament. The foursomes representing Columbia and Washington County Clubs were the only ones able to complete their rounds. The tournament was postponed.

Buddy Bowie, Columbia's Club champ, brought in the handsomest card of those completed, a 1-under-par 69. Bowie redeemed a 2-over 37 for the first nine with birdies on the twelfth, fourteenth and eighteenth and a total of 32 on the back nine.

It was Bowie's first round on the Columbia course in 15 weeks. Fred MacLeod shot a 38-39—77; Senior Titlist W. P. Putnam had a 47-48—95, and the club's ladies' champion, Mrs. John Ives, scored 43-44—87.

In the Washington group, Dave Thompson, the pro, shot a 45—39—84, Jim Gardner, club champ, was low with 35—37—72, Les H. Whitten, the senior champ, scored 48—38—86, and Mrs. G. W. Calvert tallied a 51—48—99.

ARMY-NAVY.—Another team mate featured yesterday's activity, this one against Annapolis. With Al Burton's pace-setting 71, Army-Navy won it, 16-5.

The team scores for each foursome: Burton and B. T. Clifford, 2; Bob Williams, Annapolis pro, and Cliff Eley, 1; F. H. Harrigan and W. S. Whitehead, Army-Navy, 2; Ward Dennis and Charlie Oler, Annapolis, 1; J. K. McCue and M. M. Magee, Army-Navy, 3; Cliff French and Ken Craig, Annapolis, 0; R. J. Brown and R. G. Rogers, Army-Navy, 3; Will Cooper and Will Sharp, Annapolis, 0; O. G. Smith and L. V. Steel, Army-Navy, 2½; George Hartley and Spence Spencer, ½; G. C. Wills and G. S. Phillips, Army-Navy, ½; Jack Fairchild and Jim Smith, Annapolis, 2½; C. C. Gold and J. P. Wade, Army-Navy, 3; Sid French and John Melgaard, Annapolis, 0.

In a 3/4 handicap medal play tournament, J. K. McCue was low man with 74—4-70 and G. H. Krieger was second with 80—8-72.

Qualifying rounds for the club championship began on Saturday. Match play will follow on Tuesday, the day after Labor Day.

WASHINGTON—M. S. Horne defeated R. W. Hart in the Horton Cup finals, 4 and 3.

WOODMONT—The sweepstakes scheduled yesterday was called off when only 25 golfers showed up by mid-morning. The golf shop blamed the heat.

ROCK CREEK—Only about half the usual amount of Sunday customers turned out yesterday. Here, too, the temperature was the culprit.

Marx Beaten In Final Game, 4-3

Johnstown, Pa., Aug. 29.— Marx Jewelers of Washington, D. C., relinquished their All-America Amateur Baseball Association junior championship by losing the second game of a doubleheader, 4-3, to New Orleans here today.

Earlier today, Marx gained the final round by nosing out South Amboy, N. J., 4-3.

New Orleans, runnerup to Marx last year, went through the tourney unbeaten in five games. Marx won four and lost two.

New Orleans raked Bill Witzel, Ed Hughes, and Ed Kline for 13 hits including a 354-foot homerun over the left field screen by Al Litchenstein in the first inning.

Reliefer Larry Lassale was New Orlean's hero. He came to the mound in the eighth after Washington had moved to within one run of a tie. The bases were loaded with none out. He struck out Dick Janigian, got Bill Jones on an infield pop and whiffed Sal DeGiorgi on three pitches. He struck out two more Marx boys in the scoreless ninth.

Ed Moyle's two run homer in the fourth inning paced Marx to its 4-3 win in the first game. Marx scored all its runs in that big fourth, which Jones opened with a single. Bob Bickford added a single, and both scored on Rod Hegarty's double. Moyle came through with his homer to deep right center.

Harry Brightman, Randolph-Macon, Va., Academy athlete, pitched the whole game for Marx and yielded only five hits.

suspense, both fouling to Joe Tipton.

Lemon was the whole show in the opener. He gave up a single to Christman in the second inning and that was all for the Nats until the eighth when Early and Pinch-hitter Jim Clark singled with two away.

Only two Nats reached second against Lemon who got one of the eleven Cleveland hits himself, a double in the ninth to drive the fifth Tribal run.

Forrest Thompson didn't pitch too badly. The only legitimate run Cleveland scored off him was Gordon's homer—a well-tagged wallop which landed in the seventh row of the left-field bleachers. The other two runs off Thompson, who absorbed his seventh defeat, came in the second and were unearned.

Earl Harrist pitched the ninth and pitched well—for Cleveland, who socked him for the final three runs.

TWA Inaugurates
300 m.p.h. CONSTELLATION service for WASHINGTON

DAYTON ALBUQUERQUE
CHICAGO PHOENIX
KANSAS CITY LOS ANGELES
SAN FRANCISCO

STARTING Wednesday, you can travel a new high way and enjoy the finest in air transportation every minute of the trip. World-proved TWA Constellations whisk you there at unsurpassed speed and comfort. You fly at smooth, "over-weather" altitudes, in cabins pressurized for low-level comfort, with two hostesses to make your journey doubly enjoyable. Delicious free meals are served in flight at mealtime.

Constellation Flight No. 211, the "Western Star," speeds you to Dayton in 2 hours, 5 minutes; to Chicago in 3 hours, 55 minutes. You can be in Phoenix, heart of the Southwestern Sun Country, in just 12 hours and 10 minutes; and in Los Angeles in 12 hours and 45 minutes.

You can fly back from Chicago non-stop on Constellation Flight No. 210, the "Washington Sky Chief." It leaves there at 9:50 in the morning and lands you in Washington just 2½ hours later—at 1:20 P.M.

These new Constellation flights are, of course, in addition to TWA's regular DC-3 service and its 52 overseas flights weekly, to 15 countries on four continents. Fly TWA—the only airline with Constellation service coast to coast.

7 Retired Employes To Decide on Cases Of Discrimination

That new Civil Service board to hear appeals from employes where race discrimination is charged will be composed of seven retired Federal workers. This type of person will be asked to serve on the board:

Malcolm Kerlin, long-time Commerce executive officer; Guy Moffatt, who has been in and out of Government service for many years; William H. McReynolds, former administrative assistant to the President; Ted Wilson, former Treasury personnel director; K. P. Aldridge, former First Assistant Postmaster General; Mark Shields, former clerk to the House Appropriations Committee; Guy Allen, former Treasury disbursement officer, and Al Sarre, former personnel office of Federal Works.

Meantime, each agency must appoint an official under the President's recent order to inquire into race discrimination cases. Many of the agencies are appointing their personnel officers—a practice frowned on by top Civil Service officials.

CIVIL SERVICE: This is supposed to be the last Federal service work day for Commissioner Arthur S. Flemming. And Flemming is spending it in Philadelphia where he's speaking before the convention of the AFL's American Federation of Government Employes.

Actually, however, Flemming will divide his work between the presidence of Ohio Wesleyan University and Government work. He has been asked to stay on at Civil Service to handle its budget and other major problems. He'll continue on as a member of the Hoover Commission and he'll be a personnel consultant to the Atomic Energy Commission.

REVENUE: A. H. Cross will be appointed deputy commissioner of Internal Revenue in charge of accounts and collection. He's a long-time career employe He'll succeed Paul Hankins who transferred to the Atlanta office.

ECA: A study of the personnel office and its practices and policies is being made by Vernon McGee, a former Federal official who's now on the management staff of Montgomery Ward. Outside of a few experts, the Economic Cooperation Administration is doing very little hiring either here or abroad.

NOTES—A legless veteran has been fired by Veterans Administration from its Newark, N. J., office because he was a member of the Socialist Workers Party, a Trotskyite outfit. He has appealed his case to the loyalty board . . . Two members of the new four-man national bridge champions are employed at the district offices of the United States Employment Service here. They are Victor R. Daly, chief of the personnel and fiscal division, and Clyde Woolridge, an interviewer. They defeated 24 other teams last week at Atlantic City . . . Many Federal worker bowling teams are planning to use the Arlington Farms bowling alley this season. Galt Davis is manager of the alley at the big Government girl dormitories.

RETIREMENT—The Administration will oppose any bill to permit workers to retire after 25 years of service regardless of age. The AFL's National Federation of Post Office Clerks is the latest employe group to demand the liberal retirement provision. But Warren B. Irons, chief of the Civil Service retirement division, told the postal group at its Miami convention that its plan would be opposed by the Administration because of its excess cost.

NOTES: Commerce does not plan to lay off any of its employes in its voluntary allocations office even though few new agreements will be negotiated. The present staff is needed to enforce and check on agreements in effect . . . The Public Health Service will soon assign Dr. Fred Foard to be medical director of the Bureau of Indian Affairs . . . A number of laid-off War Assets employes have protested to members of Congress that the "favorites" of top officials are being kept on the job while people with many more retention points and better ratings are fired.

ITEMS: In the past five years postal employes have been the victims of 97,825 occupational injuries of which 130 were fatal and more than 40,000 persons were disabled . . . On that very hot day last Thursday, Treasury's Division of Disbursements let its employes off 10 minutes early. How generous . . . Federal employe unions are reporting big boosts in membership with the possible exception of the Communist-line United Public Workers.

AFGE: The big item of interest at the AFGE convention here today is the fight over the presidency. Half a dozen persons are in the race. Most prominent are James Burns, who is running for reelection, and James Yaden, a vice president. There is speculating here that Burns and Yaden may deadlock the convention and open the way for the election of a dark-horse candidate.

Neck Broken by Dive Into Shallow Water

Stanley Kinchen, 31, of 4311 Newark rd., Colmar Manor, Md., suffered a broken neck yesterday when he dived into shallow water of the West River near Annapolis, Md., police reported.

He was admitted to Emergency Hospital, Annapolis, in serious condition.

Heat Kills Thousands Of Chickens In 3 States

Casualties May Mean 2 or 3-Cent Price Increase To District Buyers

Hundreds of thousands of chickens are reported to be dying of heat—and lack of proper care—on the Delmarva Peninsula. Losses are estimated at $100,000 to $150,000 a day to poultrymen in that section.

A price rise of 2 or 3 cents a pound here may be one result of the hot weather deaths, in the opinion of one poultry marketing expert.

Agricultural officials and growers in the Eastern Shore sections of Delaware, Maryland and Virginia, reported flocks as large as 30,000 birds virtually wiped out by the 100-degree temperatures of the past few days.

10 to 15 Per Cent Loss Figured

The area, which sells 100 million dollars worth of broilers annually, has lost probably 10 to 15 per cent of its flocks of marketable birds. This was the estimate of Roland Beauchamp of Bishop, Md., whose flocks of almost a million chickens make him one of the top men in the local industry.

Broilers killed by the sun are no good except as fertilizer or stock feed, Beauchamp said. He added that poultry farmers of the Eastern Shore are glutting rendering plants in the area with their dead birds, for which they receive 1 cent a pound. Current broiler prices are 36 to 37 cents a pound at the farm.

Wade H. Rice, extension service poultryman for the University of Maryland, declared the chickens which are dying are those which are too crowded or lack ventilation. Most affected, he said, are birds over seven weeks old.

He estimated it would take about two weeks before the Washington poultry market, which draws about 35 to 38 per cent of its supply from the Eastern Shore area, would be affected. The temporary shortage may raise prices here by 2 or 3 cents a pound, he said.

Area Not Hard Hit

Washington area growers of Virginia and Maryland are not experiencing losses similar to those of the Eastern Shore.

"We don't overcrowd them the way some of them do over there," Clem Gailliot of the Gailliot Brothers poultry farm south of Alexandria. "Also, it's important to keep the houses clean, because the ammonia fumes from the manure affects them in this weather."

Gailliot said he had lost only 11 chickens in a flock of 1000 during the hot spell.

Hot Weather Eating Costs Just as Much

A lot of salad is being swallowed in Washington these steamy days, but light eating doesn't lighten the load on the family food budget, local housewives say sadly.

A dozen Washington women, spot-checked by telephone yesterday, agreed that the heat had changed their dinner menus all right, but hadn't made a dent in their grocery bills.

All but two women said their families were eating as much meat as usual—but more of it, they said, was in the form of cold cuts. Salads, fruit and fruit juices have taken the place of hot breads, pastries and heavy roasts, they said.

The housewives were unanimous in reporting they hadn't saved any money on food during the hot spell.

"Regardless of how hot or cold it is, I find my pocketbook always empty," said Mrs. Frank A. Foote, 16 7th st. se.

Mrs. Pauline Fletcher, 1362 S. Carolina ave. se., agreeing said: "The stuff has gone so high, I don't see how you could save a penny regardless of what you cut down on."

Several of the women said they were doing their cooking early in the morning whenever possible, when it is cooler.

Storm Eases Heat; 7 More Deaths Here

Nine Are Rescued From Potomac When 5 Sailboats Capsize

the Potomac River off Alexandria at 5:15 p. m. after five sailboats capsized from high winds. Members of the Bolling Field crash crew rescue team were credited with saving their lives. No one was injured.

Rescued were Mr. and Mrs. Karl J. Krausse, 203 Summit ave., Kensington, Md.; Harold E. Hayes, 102 North Fillmore st., Arlington; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Jennings, 2450 North Ohio st., Arlington; Ronald Graff, 3560 Brandywine st. nw., who was boating with Miss Micky Kilgore of Dallas, Tex.; J. R. Porter, 5932 North 16th st., Arlington, and Al Barick, 1925 North Madison st., Arlington.

Three crash boats were dispatched by Corpl. D. J. Bartolomeo when he saw the first boat capsize a mile from his post, according to a Bolling Air Force Base officer. All the overturned craft were within 200 yards of one another, witnesses said.

The crash boats were commanded by Sergt. Frank Cummings, Corpl. Gerald Johnston and Pfc. Louis Hughes. Crew members included Sergt. Archie Ott, Corpl. Bartolomeo, Corpl. Peter Burke, Pfc. Frederick Berndt, Pfc. Ralph Butts and Pfc. William Baird.

Wind which accompanied scattered thundershowers yesterday in the Washington area reached a velocity of 54 miles an hour, at 5:20 p. m. But the Weather Bureau said the storm would provide only temporary relief to District residents, who have been sweltering under 95-plus temperatures for the past four days.

Today's forecast, while promising "brief" showers, also predicts temperatures of at least 90 degrees. The weather forecaster said the storm yesterday was one of several "preliminary" disturbances which are now over the country."

Started at Leesburg

The Washington area storm started at Leesburg, Va., moving north over an area about 20 miles long and 10 miles wide. There was heavy but brief rainfall in Maryland and in some sections of Washington and Virginia.

The storm caused a temperature drop from 96 degrees at 4:54 p. m. to 79 degrees at 5:27 p. m. The 97-degree high for the day came at 1:08 p. m.

Persons who were treated as heat victims at Washington hospitals yesterday were:

At Gallinger Hospital: Haywood Allen, 42, of 1115 H st. nw., in fair condition.

At Freedmen's Hospital: Lucius Chambers, 28, 717 7th st. nw.; Annabelle Pharr, 25, of 1919 3d st. nw., and Prudence Brackett, 42, of 109 R st. nw. All were released.

At Emergency Hospital: Laurence Jones, 59, of 1139 New Hampshire ave. nw., Joseph Suter, 40, 602 F st. nw. and Julius Cramer, 39, 223 F st. sw.

At Providence Hospital: Jerry Philip, 22, of 426 Virginia ave. sw.

Rockville, Md., was hit hard when the 10-minute squall wrecked equipment of the fire department carnival there and felled scores of trees on Route 28, trapping several motorists along the road. The fire alarm system there was also put out of commission by a lightning bolt that struck the fire house.

Damage to carnival equipment was estimated at between $5000 and $8000 by members of the fire department, who sponsored the show until its closing Saturday night.

The sudden violent wind twisted and wrecked more than 20 of the wood and canvas carnival stands, one of them landing in a neighboring resident's yard. Another was blown across the street, damaging a car owned by Alma Speare of Rockville.

The only undamaged carnival equipment was the merry-go-round and a new automobile won by Albert Palmer of Frederick, Md., and not yet claimed.

Between Rockville and Quince Orchard, a distance of about 10 miles, from 25 to 50 trees were reported blown down, as well as numerous electric wires, firemen reported.

Th Potomac Electric Power Co. reported "quite a lot of trouble" as the result of the storm. There were several power failures and wires were reported down at Portland and 2d st. se., in the 6600 block of Piney Branch rd., and at 4th st. and Kansas ave. nw.

Power failures were widespread in nearby Maryland, according to company officials. They said 100 wires were down in Greater Washington, caused chiefly by falling branches.

Most of Cheverly was blacked out when a transmission circuit was knocked out by a falling tree, but power was restored at 7:49 p. m. Mount Rainier and the southeastern section of suburban Washington was darkened in isolated instances, power cmopany officials said.

Failures in nearby Maryland put the Hyattsville police station radio, WJLW, off the air at about 6 o'clock. A police cruiser stood by and relayed messages to all cars, it was reported.

Darkness also descended on much of the Silver Spring area because of fallen wires.

Power company spokesmen said wires across carline tracks clogged trolleys on the Cabin John line to Glen Echo for almost three hours during the storm.

High tension wires were said to be down on Riverdale Road by Wildercroft School; on Eger rd. near the old WOL radio tower and at 53d and Quincy sts. in Bladensburg.

Movie theaters in Hyattsville closed down when their current went off.

The power company said all emergency crews were called into service to repair damage from the storm. One spokesman said it was the "worst situation I've seen in two years."

High winds toppled a 20-foot steel chimney from a Safeway store at the corner of Minnesota ave. and M st. se. The chimney fell against the building. No one was injured.

The storm also blew down a large tree in front of 804 4th st. sw.

Reporter Finds Gay 90's Just Warming After Uline's, Chillier Than Pepco Plant

by Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

Everything is relative . . . even the weather.

For instance, yesterday it was mighty nice to feel the warmth of Washington's upper 90-degree heat after standing around in 28-degree cool for a while.

And the upper 90-degree heat didn't seem hot at all after standing around in 135-degree temperature for a while.

This theory of relativity was "discovered" at probably the hottest and coldest spots in town yesterday.

The coldest place was at 3d and M sts. ne., where the Uline Ice Co. was doing business faster than you could say "Brrrrr."

Robert U. Foster, vice president and general manager of the firm, explained that hot weather doesn't get the welcome you might think at an ice company.

For instance, he said, the plant can make 240 tons of ice a day, but it can sell 800 tons a day on a day like yesterday.

Inside the company's storage room yesterday the temperature hovered around 28 degrees. Foster's comment, delivered from the depths of his lumberjacket, was, "Too warm."

Over at the Bennings substation of the Potomac Electric Power Co., Thomas Pearce, superintendent of the substation department, said, "A little chilly" as we strode up to the mammoth plant.

Relatively speaking, it was. Inside the old part of the plant—built in 1906, 24 furnaces were going full blast, creating a heat of 2800 (twenty-eight hundred, that is) degrees each.

In the boiler room itself, the heat was at 135 degrees. Men on the firing aisle work in half hour shifts. Working longer shifts at a time would endanger their health.

Thomas Wheeler, boiler room superintendent, of 5611 North Capitol st., opened up a few furnace doors for us, using a "vision glass" to see the fire bank inside without hurting his eyes.

When we got back to the door of the plant, the heat outside seemed like a cool breeze.

Pearce explained that hot weather is not particularly welcomed by power people either. They have to keep closer tabs on cables running in underground circuits, which have a tendency to get hot under such circumstances.

'Axis Sally' Would Testify She's an Alien

Grand Jury Hearing Asked on Ground She Wed German in 1940

Mildred Elizabeth Gillars — "Axis Sally" of the wartime Nazi radio—has asked the Justice Department to permit her to testify in her own behalf before the Federal grand jury now hearing treason charges against her.

A 200-word telegram sent to Attorney General Tom Clark yesterday by her attorney, John M. Holzworth, requests she be allowed to "present evidence to substantiate her citizenship in the German Reich at all times when she is alleged to have committed . . . treason against the United States."

The Government already has been ordered by District Court Judge Richmond B. Keech to show cause why a writ of habeas corpus for Miss Gillars' release should not be issued. Keech's action was taken after Holzworth in a motion claimed that Sally married a German citizen in 1940 and therefore is not a subject of the United States and cannot be tried for treason.

Forty-seven-year-old Miss Gillars, a native of Portland, Me., arrived at Bolling Field last week from Germany. She went abroad in 1929.

D. C. Communists Urge Truman Name New PUC

The Communist Party of the District has called upon President Truman to name an entirely new Public Utilities Commission.

In a city convention Friday and Saturday attended by about 60 persons the party charged the PUC with "complete disregard of the public interest and open bias in favor of monopoly interests" in the Capital Transit Co. fare increase hearing.

William C. Taylor was reelected party chairman and Roy H. Wood was named to direct an organizational drive. The convention also named a city committee of 11 to make policy.

Man's Body Discovered Under Calvert Bridge

A man tentatively identified by police as Costas B. Shippas, 51, 1313 Massachusetts ave. nw., a waiter, was found dead last night in the middle of a road under the Calvert st. bridge by a motorist.

Police said the motorist was Raymond S. Putnam, 2955 Carlton ave. ne., who found Shippas' body at 9:30 p. m. He was identified by a Social Security card found in his clothing. The District coroner will perform an autopsy today.

Suspect Seized In Beating of Young Mother

Southwest Woman Found Unconscious After Attempted Rape in Basement

A 21-year-old Maryland man was arrested yesterday on a charge of assault with intent to commit rape on a Washington mother and housewife.

The man, identified as Calvin James Sneed, 6704 Tucker rd., Oxon Hill, was apprehended by Detective Sergt. Karle Howe of the police sex squad and four plainclothes aides. He also was charged with assault and housebreaking.

Police said he admitted assaulting Mrs. Arlene W. Miller, 216 O st. sw. She was beaten unconscious in the basement of her apartment house the morning of August 20.

Police said they are questioning Sneed about a dozen housebreakings in the District and Prince Georges County.

Assisting Howe were Eldon Ernst, Alfred F. Corfield, Norman Gray and Robert Reed, Fourth Precinct privates on plainclothes duty.

A tipster gave police information which led them to Sneed's home. Police said they found in the home a pair of bloodstained trousers. Blonde hair resembling that of Mrs. Miller was found in a pocket, they said. Sneed, police records show, was arrested June 29 and given a 180-day suspended sentence of a charge of assault with brass knucks.

Mrs. Miller, mother of a 4-year-old girl, had been struck over the head several times as she entered her basement, which had been broken into, according to police. They said her screams apparently frightened her assailant away. An examination at Gallinger Hospital, where she was treated for shock and several head lacerations, showed she had not been raped.

In Assault Cases

Hot Grease, Phone Used As 'Weapons'

A pot-pourri of instruments, ranging from hot grease to a telephone, was used in weekend assaults reported yesterday to Washington police.

Treated at Casualty Hospital for face and neck burns was Vivian H. Jones, 26, of 147 46th st. ne. Police charged her husband, Ervin Jones, 23, with throwing hot grease on her during an altercation.

A telephone was the weapon used in an altercation at 712 G st. ne., between Emmett Turner and Dessie Turner White, 45, police said. The woman was treated at Casualty Hospital for head lacerations and released.

Charles Brown, 26, of 617 4th st. nw., was cut with a razor blade in the basement of his home, 617 4th st. nw. He was treated for minor wounds at Casualty Hospital. Police arrested Dorothy Brown, 22, same address, on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon.

Arrested also on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon was Abraham Hammond, 43, of 612 3rd st. sw., after Leon Turner, 23, of 1509 Simms dr. se., was cut in the neck and on the arm with a sharp instrument at the corner of 3d and F sts. sw.

Thelma Simmons, 30, was hit on the head with a club at her home, 1218 ½ st. se., police reported. She was treated at Gallinger Hospital for a forehead cut. Her husband, Richard L. Simmons, 30, was charged with assault with a dangerous weapon.

Zelphian Bellows, 36, and Timothy Gurley, 60, both of 1916 Temperance ct. nw., were treated for head lacerations at Freemen's Hospital following an altercation at their home, police reported. The woman, police said, was struck with a bottle by Ridgeway Washington, 27, of the same address. Gurley was struck with a piece of pipe, also by Washington, police reported.

Ruby W. Parker, 19, of 1402 E st. ne., was booked on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon. Police said she struck her husband, Curtis Parker, 20, on the head with a water glass. The husband was taken to Gallinger Hospital, where he was released after being treated for a head cut.

Mary Moore, 29, of 2123 N st. nw., was treated for a scalp cut at George Washington University Hospital after being struck with a beer bottle in the 1000 block of 22d st. nw. Her assailant was identified by police as John L. Wharton, 2123 N st. nw.

2 New Victims Of Polio Enter D. C. Hospitals

Two new cases of poliomyelitis were reported yesterday by Washington hospitals, sending the Greater Washington total so far this year to 101.

The new cases are a 4-year-old boy from Grays Hill Village in Fairfax County, Va., who is being treated at Children's Hospital, and a 5-year-old boy from the 200 block of I st. nw., being treated at Gallinger Hospital.

So far this year, 52 cases of polio have been reported in the District, compared to 6 for the same time last year. Nearby Maryland and Virginia counties have had 49, compared with 12 last year.

Official to Address Montgomery GOP Unit

State and county affairs will be discussed at a forum sponsored by the Montgomery County Young Men's Republican Club at 8 tonight in Masonic Temple, Georgia and Wayne aves., Silver Spring.

Speakers will be State Senator Roy Tasco Davis, president of the newly organized Dewey-Warren-Beall Club; Mrs. Leona Rush, member of the Maryland House of Delegates, and County Commissioner Wesley I. Sauter. The forum is the first of a series to be held by the club.

Sailor Haled To Court in Police Brush

A Navy chief radioman was arrested early yesterday on charges of being drunk and disorderly and assaulting police after allegedly biting two officers and striking one of them.

Chief Radioman Archibald I. Koester, 30, of 605 Cedar lane, Falls Church, told a reporter he became involved in a fracas at Wisconsin ave. and M st. nw., after he approached a police scout car to tell its occupants "what good guys the police are."

Pvts. Frederick L. Gibson and Charles B. Kadel, both of Seventh Precinct, made the arrest.

Blow, Biting Charged

Koester, the policemen said, was "talking in a loud voice" with a group of "noisy" people. Gibson said he stepped out of the scout car to assist Kadel, whereupon the sailor struck him in the face. Koester then bit him on the finger, the policeman added.

After he was struck with a nightstick, Koester was taken to the station for booking, police said. While there, he bit Pvt. Frank F. Blessington on the arm as the officer tried to put him in a patrol wagon bound for Georgetown Hospital.

The two officers were given tetanus shots, and Koester had 15 stitches taken in his scalp at the hospital. All were released after treatment.

Koester maintained he approached the scout car merely to compliment police on their work, although Gibson denied hearing any compliments.

Koester posted $500 bond for appearance today in Municipal Court on the assault charge. He forfeited $15 collateral on the other two counts.

Civitan Outing Tuesday

Members of the Civitan Club of Washington and their families will hold an all-day outing and a dinner Tuesday at Bethesda Country Club. Activities which begin at noon will include golfing, tennis and swimming. The club's regular Tuesday luncheon will be canceled for the occasion.

Inspection Will Determine Trailer Camp's Continuance

An inspection of sanitary facilities in the Gum Spring (Va.) Trailer Camp will be made some time today to determine whether the 19 families occupying the site will be able to remain there.

The camp, about 4 miles south of Alexandria on Route 1, has been without electricity since last Thursday, when power was discontinued because existing lines failed to meet Fairfax County inspection requirements. Since then, occupants have been without running water and adequate sewage facilities because the entire water-pumping system is electrical.

The electricity was cut off, according to Fairfax County authorities, after operators of the camp had been given a warning, and then an extension, to make repairs necessary to comply with the requirements. Since the first warning was issued more than a month ago, the authorities contend, no steps have been taken to replace inadequate equipment.

Since the shutoff, camp families have had to haul water in buckets and other receptacles from nearby restaurants. This, however, has not solved the sewage problem, and occupants of the trailers have been deprived of the use of the single building which formerly combined toilet and shower facilities.

Complaints of camp occupants reached the Fairfax County Health Department Saturday too late for action. However, an inspector from the department will visit the camp today to decide whether sanitary conditions are suitable for continued occupancy.

Area News in Brief

Auto Crash Ends Long Friendship

Two old friends who met and parted pleasantly and quietly yesterday, met again a few minutes later, unpleasantly and with a loud crash.

Samuel H. Belin, a kosher meat inspector of 5028 7th st. nw., had just bought a loaf of pumpernickel from his baker friend of many years, Joseph Fenster.

Both left the bakery at 4809 Georgia ave. nw.—Belin to drive home, Fenster to make some deliveries.

Belin, 77, was aided from his upset car and taken to Gallinger Hospital for treatment of head injuries. Fenster, physically unhurt, told police his old friend had driven through a stop sign.

The two have been members of the same synagogue, B'nai Israel, for more than 10 years.

Fake Holdup Report

Alexandria police last night were holding a 48-year-old laborer who admitted faking a holdup report around noon Saturday to cover his loss of $250 to a pair of "fim-flam artists."

Held without bond for investigation was James Golden, 1116 Madison st., an employe of the Madison Junk Co., Madison and Henry sts.

Golden, according to police, admitted he was duped by two men as he was returning to the junkyard from a bank with his employer's payroll. He said the pair gave him a "large roll" of money for his comparatively small payroll, but when he examined the newly-acquired wad, he found it contained a roll of children's play money wrapped in a 5-dollar bill.

Park Nap Costs Watch

Police yesterday arrested three men in connection with a robbery reported by Miss Julia Ann Bradley, 22, of 38 T st. nw. She told police she was sleeping on a park bench at 9th st. and Rhode Island ave. nw. at about 1:45 a. m. when a 17-jewel wrist watch valued at $30 and $11 in her pocketbook were taken.

Wheeler Takes First

Carl B. Wheeley, 18, of 1324 Fairmont st. nw., won first prize in the Class B free flight competition at the Plymouth Motor Corp.'s second international model plane contest at Detroit, it was announced yesterday. Wheeley's model plane, which stayed aloft for 21 minutes, won him $100 and a trophy.

Coal Miner Seeks Hiking Job To Pay for Operation on Eyes

Says He'll Test Shoes In 350-Mi. Walks From D. C. to Logan, W. Va.

To pay for a dangerous eye operation, expected to cost about $600, a nearly blind West Virginia coal miner wants a job—hiking to "test shoes" or advertise other products.

To that end he advertised in The Washington Post yesterday offering "to do advertising for any firm or firms by walking the 350 miles' distance from Washington to Logan, W. Va."

The miner is William S. Thompson, 46, who is visiting a son, William D. Thompson, at 145 12th st. se.

"I can't do much in the way of work until my vision improves," he said yesterday, "but one thing I can do is walk. I am a born walker."

Blast Impaired Sight

The lean, 6-foot, 4-inch miner said he has lost most of his vision as a result of an accident August 13, 1940, when a blast went off four feet from him in a Hutchinson Coal Co. mine at Macbeth, Va.

Hospitalized for a time, he was later placed on the total disability list and now receives $61.14 monthly under the West Virginia State Compensation law. "It is all I have to support myself and my children," he said.

Thompson explained that his vision has worsened in the years since the accident, and that today his left eye is covered by a cataract that could be removed to give better vision. Then if he could get a new cornea for his right eye he would have perfect vision there, he says.

WILLIAM S. THOMPSON
Seeks money for operation
The Washington Post

"Both eyes and my face were cut and bruised by flying coal," he says. His face is scarred.

No Provision in Law

Neither West Virginia laws nor United Mine Workers' funds provide for a dangerous eye operation, the results of which are not guaranteed, he declared.

Thompson was born at Logan, W. Va., and attended high school for a year there, then attended a Bible school in Chicago for two years. He did some preaching in addition to working 26 years in the mines.

He has six children. The four at home are 3½, 8, 12 and 21 years old, and are all boys. The 21-year-old son suffered a back injury while "doing timber work" and is not able to do much now, he says. His other two children include a 23-year-old married daughter and his son in Washington. His wife died last November.

Thompson said he first got the idea of walking-advertising when he answered an advertisement in a New York paper for someone to walk to California, but his wife was ill at the time.

Thompson says he'll guarantee to make the trip to Logan in 15 days.

"I can probably make it in 12, depending on the weather," he says, "but there are a lot of mountains between here and Logan."

Child Labor Law Expert Is Dead at 64

Miss Ellen Nathalie Matthews, 64, a pioneer in the field of child labor law administration, died yesterday at George Washington University Hospital, after an illness of about a year. Yesterday was her birthday.

A native of Boston, Mass., Miss Matthews was the daughter of a former mayor of Boston, the late Nathan Matthews, and Mrs. Ellen Bacon Sargent Matthews. She was graduated from Radcliffe College about 1907, and later received a master's degree in economics from Columbia University, New York.

In 1913, she was appointed executive secretary of the Massachusetts Minimum Wage Commission, following a period when she taught economics at Mount Holyoke College. She remained with the commission for several years prior to moving to Washington.

Federal Service

Upon her arrival here, she was employed in the Labor Department Children's Bureau. Following enactment of the first Federal child labor law about 1918, Miss Matthews became associated with Miss Grace Abbott, then assistant director of the Bureau, in responsibilities assigned the Children's Bureau to establish labor standards for children, handle administration techniques for labor law requirements and work out problems connected therewith.

When the Federal child labor law was declared unconstitutional about a year later, Miss Matthews became director of industrial research in the Children's Bureau. She remained in that capacity until about 1931, when she moved to New York City, to direct unemployment studies for the Federal Emergency Relief Administration.

Miss Matthews continued in this capacity until about 1934, when she went to Europe. From 1935 to about 1939, she was director of youth studies for the Welfare Council of New York City. In 1940, the MacMillan Publishing Company, released her book, "The Youth of New York City," considered an example of the statistical sampling methods applied to social studies of youth problems.

Miss Matthews returned to Washington about 1939 and established her home at 7 West Underwood st., Chevy Chase, Md., where she lived until her death.

She is survived by two aunts, Mrs. LaBarre Jayne, of Philadelphia, Pa., and Sister Paula of the Sisterhood of St. Margaret, in Boston, Mass.

Funeral services and burial will be Thursday in Boston.

Maj. M.L. Wolf Rites to Be On Wednesday

Funeral and reburial service for Maj. Max Leland Wolf, 32, who was killed in St. Lo France, one week after D-Day, will be held Wednesday at 2 p. m. at the Northminster Presbyterian Church. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Major Wolf served in the African, Tunisian and Sicilian campaigns. He held the ETO ribbon with four battle stars, the Purple Heart and the Presidential Unit Citation.

He was born in Gibson, Ill., and was graduated from Knox College, Ill. He came to Washington in 1933 and worked in the advertising department of the Washington Times-Herald and Daily News. In 1942 he married Miss Dorothy Campbell of Washington and lived at 604 McNeil rd., Silver Spring, Md.

Major Wolf was a member of the Advertising Club of Washington and the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity.

Besides his wife, Major Wolf is survived by his father, Ralph D. Wolf; a brother, Harlan; and a sister, Mrs Morine Hughes all of Gilson, Ill.

James Webster

Chicago, Aug. 29 (AP).—James Webster, 91, former New York Central and Nickel Plate Railroad official, died here today following a long illness.

Included in the survivors is his grandson, James T. Webster, of West Englewood, N. J., assistant to the vice president of the New York Central.

A. H. Livezey, Food Broker, 56, Succumbs

Alfred H. Livezey, 56, a food broker here for the Reed & Murdock Company of Chicago, died yesterday at Garfield Hospital, after an illness of about two months.

Mr. Livezey was born in Philadelphia, Pa., and was educated there. A resident of Washington for the past 16 years, he came here with his wife, Mrs. Betty Cuthbert Livezey, as a Washington representative of the Beechnut Packing Company, with whom he had been previously affiliated in Wilmington, Del. He lived at 2218 Cathedral ave. nw.

Besides his wife, Mr. Livezey leaves two sisters, Mrs. Edward H. Levan and Mrs. Harriet Flood, both of Philadelphia, and three brothers, Harry and William Livezey, both of Philadelphia, and John Franklin Livezey, of Boston.

'Outliving' Communism Held Better Than Outfighting It

The only way to overcome Communism is for Christians to "outlive" it, the Rev. J. Brooke Mosley asserted yesterday at Epiphany Episcopal Church, 1317 G st. nw.

Mr. Mosley, who is director of social relations for the Episcopal Diocese of Washington, based his sermon on the recent statement of Anglican bishops following the Lambeth Conference in London.

We cannot out-talk the menace of communism by talking about our free and democratic institutions, he said, because Communists will not accept our word and will not be changed by the talk. He added that we cannot out-maneuver it because in all diplomatic processes concessions must be made.

We cannot overcome communism by out-fighting it, he continued. "We could defeat a Communist nation, but communism is a belief, a philosophy, and a way of life and would spring up again."

Only by having a better idea, and by proving to the world that it is better can we "outlive" communism, Mr. Mosely stated, calling for practice of the social truths of the Christian faith.

Union Service Speaker Calls for New Loyalty

Christians must find a new loyalty to the church, the Rev. Edmund Robert Strait, assistant pastor of Mount Pleasant Congregational Church, 1410 Columbia rd. nw., declared yesterday.

Mr. Strait spoke at a union service of his church with Universalist Memorial Church. Next Sunday the two churches will resume separate services.

The first great loyalty of every man seeking success in life is to the best within him, he said, pointing out that he must follow the precept "know thyself."

He called for a loyalty outside of ourselves—to the Christian Church, "the encompassing and complete object for our loyalty."

The church, he pointed out, contains all the great ideals—liberty, justice, truth and love. We must give all of our efforts to this loyalty, for it takes cooperation, daring and sacrifice to build a real church, he said.

City, Farm Cooperation Urged on Prices

By The Associated Press

A congressional agriculture leader said yesterday that if city people want farm prices brought down "then they must bring down the prices of things made in the cities."

The statement came from Chairman Hope (R., Ark.) of the House Agriculture Committee. He is prominently mentioned for the Cabinet post of Secretary of Agriculture if the Republicans win the November election.

Hope told a reporter there is no reason now to consider cutting back Government supports of farm prices He admonished that beating down of farm prices, without price reductions for other things, "is the surest way" to bring on a depression.

The best thing that could happen to the Nation's economy, he said, would be for city people to study how the farm price support program works. Many do not understand, he explained, that the level of farm price supports cannot go up one cent, without prices of city-made goods going up first; and that when the prices of city-made things drop, the level of farm price supports, under the law, must be reduced proportionately.

"There is a lot of hysteria, not justified by fact, blaming the farm price support program for high food prices," he said. "The fact is the support guarantees have served to encourage larger farm production that has stopped food prices from going much higher in the war and postwar periods.

"The big crops have been a blessing. There is nothing in the picture now to make us have any concern about price supports."

Incinerator Stew Prepared by Glutted Market

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

KEEPING PRICES HIGH—Two Cleveland incinerator employes prepare to stuff 7500 pounds of fresh vegetables into the furnace. The cabbage, carrots, green beans, watermelons, tomatoes, celery and sweet corn are part of tons of produce destroyed daily because of a glutted market. Poor folk carried off smaller amounts

Heat Forces Food Market To Dump Fresh Vegetables

Cleveland, Aug. 29 (AP).—High temperatures have resulted in food markets here being glutted with fresh vegetables and some three carloads a day are being thrown away, market officials said today.

Lou B. Foote, president of the Cleveland Growers' market said the hot weather had ripened the produce quickly and at the same time had resulted in less demand.

He predicted the surplus would continue for several weeks.

"The thrifty housewife could find some real bargains—if she would go looking for them," Foote said. He urged them to purchase the produce for canning.

Foote reported his groups' markets received about 10 carloads of vegetables daily and usually have to dump as waste at least three carloads.

Senator Capper Campaigns for Kansas Dry Law

By the United Press

Senator Arthur Capper yesterday appealed to his Kansas neighbors to vote for prohibition this fall.

A proposed amendment to the State constitution to repeal the dry law that has been in force for more than 60 years will be placed before the voters in November.

The 83-year-old Capper, who recently announced his retirement after 30 years as a Republican Senator, renewed his lifelong battle for prohibition in a broadcast from Topeka.

Chemistry May Prove Our Ace In Vital Crop Increase Game

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Chemistry in agriculture may win men's battle for survival in a world of shrinking resources and multiplying populations, according to a report made public here yesterday by Army specialists.

The report, prepared by Drs. Robert L. Weintraub and A. G. Norman, of the Army Chemical Corps, Camp Detrick, Frederick, Md., was issued by the American Chemical Society which opens its 114th national meeting here today.

Optimism over eventual scientific control of plant life was admittedly based largely on early successes in treatment of crops with growth-regulating compounds. Such experiments, the report said, have so far been restricted mainly to flowers and fruits.

"However," the report stated, "the common field crops that bulk large in producing the food and fiber of the world may be as susceptible to control as are those horticultural and fruit crops that have received more attention."

Seedless Fruit Cited

Chemistry in agriculture, it was pointed out, is already reducing man's dependence on insects for pollination. Seedless fruit of exceptional size and flavor has been produced without pollination by chemical treatment of fruit-tree blossoms.

Sweeter tomatoes, and wheat richer in protein have resulted from the use of growth-regulators, it was stated. Also, the ripening of bananas in storage has been accelerated, the flowering time of pineapples has been controlled to meet seasonal requirements, and premature fruit fall has been averted, all by chemical means.

The Army specialists foresaw possibility of hastening maturity of food plants by chemicals so they could be grown in short summer of northern latitudes; the treatment of poor pasture lands to provide perpetual forage, and greater yields of corn and other staple grains by use of chemical growth-regulators.

They urged that more basic research be made into the action of presently known plant hormones, declaring that much of the experimenting to date has been conducted in an empirical (mere observational) manner. A major obstacle to the development of new growth-regulators and additional uses for such compounds is the lack of fundamental knowledge of their mechanism of action, it was asserted.

Would Adapt Homones

"It should be possible ultimately to create tailor-made hormones to produce specific properties in plants," the report added.

"In a late season, flowering of some plants might be advanced in order to secure maturity before the frosts of autumn. In an early spring, bud development and flower opening in fruit crops might be delayed to obviate late frost injury. Parthenocarpic (without pollination) fruit setting may be widely practiced with the result that seedless or almost seedless fruits and vegetables become common. The dependence upon insects and other natural polinating agencies may be reduced and so provide greater latitude in the use of insecticides."

Chow Car In, Chow Line Out At Ft. Belvoir

Fort Belvoir (Va.) yesterday conducted an experiment in serving hungry GI's in a style to which they haven't been accustomed. No chow line, that is.

One hundred and fifty-two members of "A" Company, School Battalion, Engineer Center, sat down at tidy four-man mess tables and were served their noon chow from electrically heated food carts wheeled around the mess hall.

Borrowed from the Station Hospital, the carts held only the hot dishes of the meal while a salad and condiments previously had been placed on the tables along with pitchers of iced tea.

With two dining room orderlies serving from each cart, the 152 GIs were served in about 20 minutes, officers reported, with the business of securing "seconds" taking about 10 minutes.

Lieut. Col. Glenn A. Powell, commanding officer of the School Battalion, said he was glad his battalion had the opportunity to try out the new mess idea. Lieut. Col. Guy F. Maple, commanding officer of the Engineer Center Regiment, may install the new service throughout the fort if he decides the experiment proves its worth, officers said.

Attend Mass at Rome

Rome, Aug. 29 (AP).—Catholic pilgrims from the United States heard mass today at American Santa Susanna's Church, celebrated by Archbishop Richard J. Cushing of Boston.

So far as was known, all of the 535 Americans in the pilgrimage were at the service. It was the beginning of a round of visits and services in Roman holy places which will culminate in an audience with Pope Pius XII Wednesday.

Toothbrushes in Use Are Seldom Adequate

Chicago, Aug. 29 (AP).—Four of five toothbrushes now in use in America are so badly worn or in such unsanitary condition that they are no good for oral hygiene, an article in the September issue of the journal of the American Dental Association says.

The article was based on a coast-to-coast survey by two ADA staff members.

"The study provides adequate evidence that only a small percentage of the American public follows oral hygiene practices," the report declared.

Husband Poisoner Asks To Be Physician Again

Tokyo, Aug. 29 (AP).—A woman doctor, jailed for trying to kill her husband with typhus germs, is seeking reinstatement as a physician.

She is Kikuko Hirose of Osaka, who got an 8-year term in 1940.

Her husband recovered, but his brother died of typhus. Paroled after three years, she since has made her living as a hospital attendant.

The Welfare Ministry is studying her application.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Girl Finds Herself Madly in Love With Elder Sister's Fiance, and He With Her, She Says; What's Right Solution of This?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My sister Faith, who is a year older than I and who was graduated from college a year ago, is engaged to Tom, a man she met at school.

Their plan was to marry next winter, when Tom shall have obtained his doctor's degree; but last fall, when Faith was away on vacation, Tom took me out occasionally and we fell madly in love. I am not as brilliant as Faith, but I love sports and Tom does, too.

Still he is very fond of Faith and I wouldn't want to do anything to hurt her, as we have always been very close. I have always been more popular than Faith and I am afraid if she doesn't marry Tom that she'll never get another chance.

Should New Love Proclaim Itself?

EVER SINCE Tom and I realized that we were in love we've tried to stay away from each other, but we have met occasionally. My mother knows the situation and I am sure she blames me.

Recently I've had a chance to go to another State, where I would have a good job. Should I go? Or should Tom and I tell my sister of our feelings for each other, and be married ourselves next winter? We want to do what is best for Faith. If Tom should marry her, how could I excuse myself from going to the wedding and being her attendant? Please help us come to a decision. K. S.

Younger Sister Isn't Cricket

DEAR K. S.: Sisters may be decidedly unlike in physical appearance and temperament; they may have little, if anything, in common in the final assessment of individual character; and yet bear a strong resemblance to each other. This is a paradox generally observable.

And because of this elusive suggestion of similarity, it were natural enough for a man in love and betrothed to marry to unconsciously transpose some of his established feeling for his true love to her sister or sisters, if the latter are comparably personable and occasion finds him sentimentally disconsolate, without his true love at hand.

However, this diffuse impulse isn't apt to take an amative or compromising turn, indeed isn't likely to register on the surface of his thought or behavior at all, unless one or another of the sisters is unscrupulously disposed to "make something" of the potential she intuitively senses. And that's what happened in this case, I think.

Interloper Should Discipline Herself

AS I GET the picture, Tom cares for Faith with real tenderness and sensible devotion nurtured by a substantial knowledge of their wholesome compatibility of mind, habit and purpose; but you made a play for him last fall, muscling in to test the efficacy of your "more popular" come-hither when her back was turned, using sex appeal, invidious accent on love of sports and gently catty remarks about Faith as your trump cards.

Tom fell for your line, but not completely. You kindled physical infatuation without reaching his heart or undermining his great regard for Faith. Consequently he is confused, conflicted, guilt-ridden, hence emotionally blocked in relation to Faith, but also instinctively impelled to avoid you,—and my advice is to stop angling for him.

He is Faith's fiance, unless and until they dissolve their engagement, and you've no right to try to promote a break between them. If they marry, you should assist in the ceremony if asked; and if it hurts, that's your penance for previous presumption. It would be yellow and melodramatic to hide out, or otherwise advertise the implication of bleeding heart. In the meantime, if your parents approve, take the job in another State. A change of milieu might clear your head. M. H.

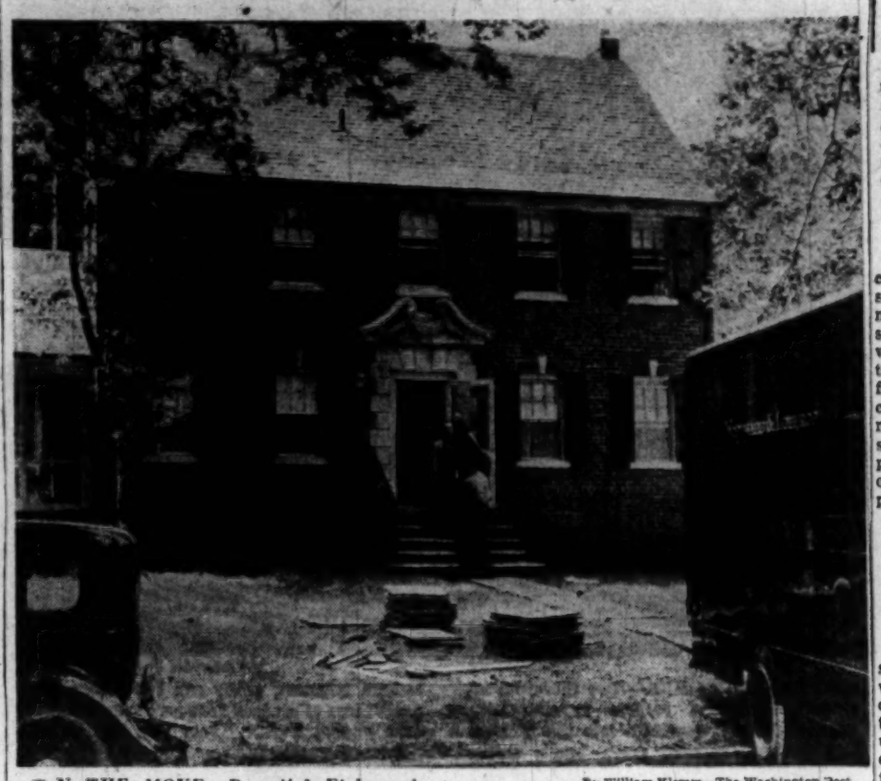
Home of '48 Readied for Exhibit



By William Klemm—The Washington Post

ON THE MOVE: Beautiful Eighteenth-Century furniture was being carried into the "Home of '48" at 3712 48th st. nw. when this picture was taken. The Georgian Colonial house, built by the W. C. and A. N. Miller Development Co. and furnished by Woodward & Lothrop, will be open to the public soon as part of The Washington Post-sponsored housing show

By Lucia Brown

LAST week was a busy one at 3712 48th st., nw.

The handsome, red brick model home at that address was nearing completion. Vans were driving up constantly, and men bearing furniture and rugs were beating a trail to the door. Inside, it was just like Christmas, as box after box of beautiful lamps, vases, and accessories were unpacked.

To find out just what this entry in the "Homes of '48" is going to be like, we paid an exciting visit to the Spring Valley house in the midst of all the activity.

Apparently, this is going to be the first model home finished and furnished for the big fall housing show, sponsored by The Washington Post and 26 local firms. W. C. & A. N. Miller Development Co. and Woodward & Lothrop will have their offering ready and waiting well in advance of the opening on September 12.

And a beautiful offering it's going to be, too, with its Georgian Colonial exterior and lovely, restful interior.

IN THE first place, the three-story house is well designed in the best Miller tradition. An ornate carved limestone entrance graces the front-door area. There is a screened porch at one end and an attached two-car garage at the other.

When you first enter the house, you find yourself in a spacious entrance hall with a stairway leading to the second floor. To the left is a long living room and to the right, the dining room.

Williamsburg blue has been used in papering all three of these rooms. The living and dining rooms are done in solid color, with white woodwork. The hall has a beautiful and unusual paper with a yellow grape design on Williamsburg blue background.

In the living room, a picture window and a mantelpiece of black Italian marble and white woodwork add to the gracious effect. Floor-length hangings are in floral design with a gold background. A Duncan Phyfe sofa is upholstered in gold-striped velvet, and a Chippendale sofa in persimmon shade. Two bracken green chairs and a handsome mahogany knee-hole desk are among the other reproductions in the room.

EARLY BIRDS: Mrs. Stella M. Poindexter (right), home-furnishings coordinator at Woodward & Lothrop, and her assistant, Mrs. Lois Wannan (left), are in charge of decorating the model home and will finish the job well in advance of the opening date, September 12. In this picture, they're working in the spacious living room, which has walls of Williamsburg blue and is furnished in fine reproductions

THE DINING ROOM is furnished in traditional style, with a full-sized Duncan Phyfe dining table and Heppelwhite chairs, all of mahogany. Draperies are of gold linen, with gilded valances.

Upstairs, the grape wallpaper in Williamsburg blue and yellow is used in the hall, too. To carry out the yellow highlights, the inside of the linen closet is painted in this color and it predominates in the bathroom at the end of the hall.

A heavenly quartz pink shade has been used in papering the largest of the bedrooms. The luxurious, thickly piled rug is a muted tone of this color, while the silk tissue gauze hangings match the paper exactly. Valances are of a kingfisher blue taffeta, arranged in a rose-petal swag. Spreads will be of kingfisher blue, and a small attached powder room is painted in this color. Two exquisite Chippendale lamps are made of quartz pink china with taffeta shades.

Crisp white organdy is featured in the young girl's room across the hall. The slender, pink, four-poster bed has a valance and spread of this dainty eyelet embroidered material. The dressing table is hung with it and it is used for the floor-length draperies.

THE room for the boy of the family is the only one not furnished in reproductions. The walnut furniture is streamlined and modern. The rug is of bronze shuttle point, and an upholstered easy chair is in a brown, green, and red print in horse design.

Up on the third floor, there's space that can be used either as quarters or as a storage area. Woodward & Lothrop is furnishing it with maple reproductions for the model home showing. The house also has a full basement with a fireplace, which can be converted into a recreation room.

And last but not least, there's the kitchen on the first floor. It's bound to make a hit with housewives, for it's full of labor-saving mechanical devices. They include an electric garbage disposal unit, electric dishwasher, and exhaust fan, as well as the range and refrigerator.

The luxurious home, which you're all invited to visit on or after September 12, stands on an 80 by 100 foot wooded lot. It's situated on land boasting the third highest elevation in the District—only 4½ miles from the White House.

Homes of '48 Open Beginning Sept. 12

In just 13 more days, 13 beautiful model houses will open their doors to the public in the big "Homes of '48" exhibit.

Sponsored by The Washington Post and 26 local builders and furniture dealers, the exhibit will include a wide variety of furnished houses, located in different residential sections in the Washington area. A map to guide you to them will be provided by The Washington Post.

All the homes will open sumultaneously on Sunday, September 12, and callers will not be admitted until then. The show will continue for four consecutive weeks.

How to Starch Table Mats

What kind of starch should I use to stiffen crocheted table mats. I have used sugar but it gets sticky in damp weather, raw starch leaves a white powder on the table and regular cooked starch doesn't make them stiff enough. Also, it doesn't stand up in damp weather. D. W. G.

If properly prepared, a stiff cooked starch should be the most satisfactory type for your table mats. Use one half cup dry starch, dissolved in as much cold water, to two cups of boiling water. Boil vigorously for three to five minutes, then add one cup of cold water. Dip the freshly washed, rinsed and still-wet mats into the starch. Wring out and hang or place them on stretchers to thoroughly dry. Be sure they dry completely.

How can I clean an aluminum shower stall? It has become stained by soap and water and scrubbing with plain water does no good. It is too large to clean with aluminum polish. R. S. L.

Possibly the soap and water stain will come off if you will wipe it with vinegar on a soft cloth. If this doesn't do the trick, the only solution seems to be the use of a steel wool soap pad or other polish designed especially for aluminum. Such treatment would be hard work and time-consuming, but it will probably be the only way to remove the stain completely if it has been there for a time. However, once thoroughly cleaned, a wiping every week with the vinegar to remove soap scum should keep it in tip-top shape.

My husband and I are in the process of buying a new house and I would like your advice on one point in particular. The house is the "petite" type and I am planning to have broadloom rugs, wall to wall all over except for the kitchen, of course. We think that this will make the rooms look larger, are we correct? Also, someone told my husband that this type of rug is not good for the floor. Could you help us out? Why it isn't good for the floor I don't know, but we would like to know so we can do the right thing by our little house. Do you think a dark shade is better than light? The walls are painted light-beige gold. M. S. G.

Yes, indeed, wall to wall carpets will do much to give a feeling of spaciousness to your little house. As I see it, the only possible damage to the floor would be the slight tack holes where the rug is tacked down. But this damage is slight compared to the protection the rug will give to the floor from wear and soil.

The most practical shade for a rug is a medium shade rather than one which is very light or very dark. The very light rugs show soil readily and the very dark ones are difficult to keep attractive because lint, dust and even track marks show on them. To further add to the feeling of size, choose a plain rug or one with very small design.

Where can I find information on children's hospitals and orphanages concerning their need for dolls, scrapbooks, etc.? Our young married women's club is interested in this project. J. R.

I'd suggest calling Mrs. Dunn at the Children's Hospital here in Washington (Dupont 4220) and the Washington City Orphan Asylum, Woodley 2100.

of honor for her daughter and Miss Elaine Calcote was bridesmaid. Hartwell F. Calcote was his brother's best man. The ushers were J. Warren Whitesel, Robert F. McConkey and Ralph Kirby. A reception followed at the home of the bridegroom's parents.

Mrs. Calcote attended Immaculata Convent in Lima and Mr. Calcote was graduated from Benjamin Franklin University. On return from their wedding trip in Virginia, the newlyweds will reside in Tunis, Tunisia, North Africa, where Mr. Calcote is an officer in the American Diplomatic Corps.

Moss—Luzzi

Miss Yolanda Flora Luzzi and Wesley Barton Moss were married yesterday afternoon at the Georgetown Presbyterian Church, the Rev. John Bailey Kelly officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Emilia Luzzi of Washington, formerly of Rochester, N. Y., and the late Edmondo N. Luzzi. Mr. Moss' parents are Mr. and Mrs. Michael Moss of Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

Mrs. Luzzi gave her daughter in marriage. The bride wore a gown of white lace with a matching mantilla and carried white orchids with lace fan. Miss Inez R. Luzzi was her sister's maid of honor. Miss Flora Jean Rizzo of Rochester, N. Y., was bridesmaid. The best man was Bowman Stratton of Parkfairfax, Va. Robert Mathes and Gunnar Sundstrom, both of Alexandria, Va., served as ushers. A reception followed. The couple will be at home in Washington on return from a wedding trip through New York State and Pennsylvania.

Slade—Savin

The marriage of Miss Barclay Ellen Savin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Savin, of Washington and Boston, Mass., to Albert E. Slade, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest R. Slade, of Chevy Chase, Md., took place on August 21 at Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Franklin W. Gillespie officiated.

Mr. Savin gave his daughter in marriage. Her gown was of white silk over taffeta with which she wore an heirloom veil of Spanish lace. She carried pink rose buds, stephanotis and delphinium. Mrs. Richard W. Peckitt of Yellow Springs, Ohio, was matron of honor for her sister. The bridesmaids were Mrs. Sayre Shafer, Miss Sayra Benson and Mrs. William H. Savin, jr. Edward Wickers was best man. Ushering were Philip Faurote, Sayre Shafer and William H. Savin, jr. The reception took place at the home of William H. Savin, jr. After a honeymoon at Cape Cod, the couple will be at home in Maryland.

Hallahan—Crowe

Miss Alice Helena Crowe of Worcester, Mass., was married on August 21 at the Church of Our Lady of the Rosary, Worcester, to Maj. John Michael Hallahan of Washington. The Rev. Richard J. Riley officiated.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Henry Crowe of Worcester, was given in marriage by her father. Her gown was of pearl-glow satin trimmed with pearls and silver beads. A duchess lace cap held her full length veil and she carried white gardenias.

Miss Lois Elizabeth Crowe served as maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Misses Joan Marie and Elaine Marcia Crowe, sisters of the bride. Maj. Richard H. Orth, USA, of New Jersey, was best man and William G. Farrington of Long Island and James P. Allen of New York were ushers. A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents.

The newlyweds will reside in the Capital on return from their Bermuda honeymoon.

Mrs. Hallahan received her bachelor's and master's degrees from Clark University. She is now employed by the Department of Interior.

Major Hallahan, son of Michael Hallahan of Yonkers, N. Y., was graduated from Manhattan College and also attended Columbia University. He is attached to the Army General Staff in Washington.

Martyn—Gray

Miss Maude E. Gray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde M. Gray of Danville, Pa., was married on August 28 to John P. Martyn, son of Dr. and Mrs. H. E. Martyn of Washington. The Rev. Alfred Hurst performed the ceremony at Cleveland Park Congregational Church.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white organza dress with a white tulle hat and carried a bouquet of roses. Mrs. Ann Warrell, the matron of honor, wore a blue dress and carried pink roses. Ralph Le Comte was best man.

A reception followed at the home of the bridegroom's parents. On return from their honeymoon at Virginia Beach, Va., Mr. and Mrs. Martyn will reside in Alexandria, Va. Mr. Martyn attended American University.

Panagakos—Selimou

In St. Sophia Greek Orthodox Church last evening Miss Dimitra Selimou of Sparta, Greece, became the bride of Peter Panagakos of Washington.

The bride is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Selimou. Her husband's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Louis Panagakos of this city.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Gus Korinis, the bride wore a white satin gown with an orange blossom crown holding her fingertip veil. Miss Evelyn Panagakos was maid of honor and Miss Peggy Vazenios was junior bridesmaid. Louis Gavaris of Norfolk, Va., served as best man and guests were seated by James Nicholas, jr. The couple will live in Washington following a honeymoon in Atlantic City, N. J.

The Kain Way

Eat to Reduce On Modern, Dynamic Diet

By Ida Jean Kain

Being a dietitian—I used to wear a stiffly starched, white uniform, cap and all—I have always rigidly adhered to the straight-and-scientific path on reducing diets. Now, to my own amazement, I have come to the conclusion that that is not the way to get women eagerly following a protective pattern of eating to reduce. Women generally have no longing to be sensible—they would like something more exciting, thank you.

As a matter of scientific fact, sound nutrition as applied to reducing is far more dynamic in its magic effects than a lopsided diet that leaves the reducer as limp as a wilted petunia. So let's go ahead with dynamic reducing.

You can lose weight faster by eating to reduce than you could by not eating enough to reduce. Paradoxical? No—scientific. Eating raises the energy output. After absorption, the products of digestion stimulate the fires of metabolism in the tissues to burn more briskly. So eating, scientifically, helps reducing along.

Some foods have the power to whip up internal processes more effectively than others, and right there is where we apply science and eat to normalize weight. You've heard about the specific dynamic action of protein—what that means in terms of reducing is this: Protein calories actually stimulate the body to burn more calories.

This will be more interesting when put in the form of good food—here it is. Two slices of toast at breakfast are more fattening than one slice of toast (starch) and an egg (protein). When you eat 100 calories of bread, or any carbohydrate food, you actually burn 106 calories. The extra calories are required to cover the cost of digestion. But when 100 calories of lean meat, eggs, fish, cheese or any other protein food are eaten, the rise in metabolism is much greater, and 130 to 140 calories are burned. Protein calories are high-powered, and weight is lost faster on a low calorie diet that is high in protein than on exactly the same number of calories but with less protein. That's scientific magic.

While we're putting the calories in their place, we'd better look into fats, for food fats are more than twice as fattening as carbohydrates. In terms of food, one ounce of sugar totals 113 calories, but one ounce of butter contains 218 calories. See? Trimming off fats is the fastest way to cut calories—and reduce.

Cut fats to the quick. Do not fry the breakfast egg. On the luncheon sandwich use mustard in place of mayonnaise. Better yet, have a grilled sandwich with a generous slice of leftover meat loaf to step up the protein, and on one slice of bread to limit the starch calories. Broil the meat at dinner, go easy on French dressing on salads, and delete cream sauces.

A reducing diet restricted to 1000 or 1200 punch-packing calories can keep your spirits up and get your weight down. Want to try eating to lose? Send for "Waist Whittling" which budgets calories. Write to Ida Jean Kain, The Washington Post, and please enclose stamped self addressed envelope.

The Naughty Child

Never send a naughty child away with the statement that you do not love her any more because she was bad. First of all, it is a silly statement and second of all, the child should be certain of mother's love, whether she is good or bad. It is far better to tell the disobedient child that the reason it hurts you when she is naughty is because you love her so much.

A Child With a Hobby

It is well for the child to have a side interest in life besides the vocation from which he hopes to make his living. It may be a musical instrument or voice training he enjoys or art in its many forms. Gardening is a joy to others, but there should be some creative work which the child enjoys to offset the hard work to come. This extra activity rounds out the child's life and fills many dull hours.

Caring for the Mop

A washday for mops is recommended by Better Homes and Gardens Magazine. Oil mops or treated mops may be washed in mild lukewarm suds. If mop is very dirty wash it twice or more, using fresh suds each time. Then rinse in lukewarm water until all soap and dirt are removed. Recondition by dipping in a lemon-oil solution (¼ cup lemon-oil stirred into 1 pint water). Squeeze out excess moistures, shake until fluffy. Hang to dry, mop end up.

Does your present connections offer you the opportunity and security you need for the future? We are a AAA-1 national organization and have been in the weatherproofing business exclusively for over 50 years. We manufacture, sell, and install through our own factory branches. Last year we had 36 branches, this year 40. We do not sell through distributors or dealers. This is one reason our prices are attractive. Frankly we need men who are willing to assume responsibility and can grow with our organization. Our program is outstanding and will be backed by the largest advertising program locally and nationally that we have ever attempted. Our commissions are huge and we will pay you a liberal drawing account. Apply by letter, phone, or see in person Maurice Bain, Branch Manager. It may be profitable for both of us.

MICKEY FINN

COULD MICKEY BE RIGHT IN THINKING THAT THE REDHEAD IS JUST LAZY, TOM?
MAYBE! BUT I'M AFRAID THE SCOUT IS RIGHT! THE KID IS BUILT FOR POWER -NOT SPEED! HE'S GOT VERY HEAVY LEGS!
DON'T LET ANYBODY TELL YOU THAT HE'S SLOW! HE CAN RUN LIKE A DEER! I KNOW - I'VE HAD TO CHASE HIM AND THAT WEEPY MANY TIMES!
THAT'S JUST WHAT I WANTED TO HEAR, McCAFFERTY! NOW WHERE DO YOU THINK I MIGHT FIND HIM THIS MORNING?
HE'S NOT HOME-AND HE'S NOT AT LOUIE'S -I WAS JUST OVER THERE!
HE MIGHT HAVE GONE SWIMMIN'-IT'S A HOT DAY! TRY THE OLD PIER AT THE FOOT OF DOCK STREET - THAT'S WHERE THEY ALL GO!
I'LL TELL YOU WHEN YOU GET UP HERE! C'MON!
ME? WHY?

WERE YOU EVER IN LOVE, MARK?
YES, GEORGE... WITH A WONDERFUL GIRL...
...I CAN SHUT MY EYES AND SEE THE WAY HER BLACK HAIR CURLS ABOUT HER EARS...AND THE WAY THE LIGHT SHINES IN HER BROWN EYES
I ALWAYS PLANNED TO LOOK FOR A GIRL LIKE THAT...BLACK CURLS, BROWN EYES...BUT I LET WORK KEEP ME TOO BUSY...
ED DDOO BOO
...IF WE COULD GET OUT OF HERE, WE'D DO THINGS DIFFERENTLY, WOULDN'T WE?
NO IF'S ABOUT IT... WE'LL KEEP ON TILL WE FIND A WAY OUT

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Ever Try a Bent Pin On a Bamboo Pole, Vic?

Victor Clunet of 4531 Yuma st. nw. (he's district manager of the Phelps Dodge Copper Products Corp.) used to be the kind of fisherman who went all out for his favorite sport, and hang the expense.

Rods and reels costing hundreds of dollars and a big selection of high-priced lures were considered basic essentials. After all, if a fellow is going to be a fisherman, he might as well go for the full treatment.

But doubts have now arisen in Vic's mind, and the story of how this came to pass is engagingly told by Harman W. Nichols of 6752 Fairfax rd., Bethesda, Md., who is a reporter with the United Press. Here's what happened:

Vic, his wife, Frances, and Harman went fishing the other day. Vic trotted out his expensive equipment, but couldn't do a lick of good with it. He tried everything but a subpoena, but the few fish that deigned to notice his efforts merely stole his bait.

Just as Vic was losing a $1.25 "cork popper" to an uncooperative fish, Fran said: "Vic, let me have your handkerchief."

Thinking that Fran was about to come down with a spell of her usual August sneezes, Vic handed over his handkerchief. He was aghast when she cut a 4-inch square out of it, spiked it on a hook, and cast it out into the water.

His consternation was complete when she immediately got a bite, and hauled in a 5-pound large-mouth black bass.

Harman reports that he and Fran thought the bass tasted fine. But Vic wasn't very hungry.

FOR PUZZLE FANS ONLY

Since failing to answer your questions about the DAV puzzle contest last week, I've dug up a little behind-stairs gossip on the subject.

However, unlike my colleagues on page one, I get my dope from "impeachable" sources, so don't hold me to this.

I understand that there were about 1100 contestants tied for first place in the original puzzle, and that a series of five tie-breaking puzzles are about to be mailed out to these folks.

If you do not receive the five new puzzles within the next few days, you can consider yourself a loser. If you do, you'll have about two weeks to work and return the new puzzles.

I tried to find out the winning score, but failed. The best I could learn was:

"If you didn't get OVER 932, you lost."

PIED TYPE DEPT.

Eagle-eyed District Liners pounce on typographical errors like Phil Rizzuto descends on infield bounders.

Our morning contemporary's presses were still rolling when Bob Haas of 2963 McKinley st. nw. clipped and forwarded a touching little piece about "granting the last request of a drying boy."

Capt. R. C. Harrison of 3364 18th st. nw. got a chuckle out of our own statement that a local hacker had been napping "on the rear seat of his packed cab." (Sounds a bit uncomfortable, doesn't it?)

J. J. Kelleher of 1510 Timber lane, Falls Church, Va., weighed-in with a line from Jerry Klutz's column which said that one of the jobs open at Fort Belvoir was that of "shot" repairman.

And Jerry Smith of 1235 N. Glebe rd., Arlington, Va., was properly startled at the news that:

"In Arlington, an 88-year-old boy suffered a broken left ankle when struck by an auto."

Wails Jerry: "How old does a fellow have to get, to be considered a grownup?"

Lieut. Comdr. R. C. of 8514 Greenwood ave., Takoma Park, Md., closes the discussion with a radio program listing from one of our afternoon contemporaries. "Price Control" was listed as a forum program's "disgusting" topic.

Oh, well—where prices are concerned, "discussed" and "disgust" are practically synonymous anyhow.

STILL EN ROUTE?

The drunk who was found riding a horse down the stretch at Marlboro the other midnight has successfully identified himself as a Baltimore taxi-driver.

So the question of what happened to the entry I backed in the eighth race that afternoon remains unsettled.

I thought surely he'd be in by now.

Come to think of it, maybe he got caught in the usual Marlboro traffic jam and is still waiting for a chance to start inching forward.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

The other day you remarked that every time you commented about the weather, it got worse. (How true!)

Then, shortly afterward, you observed that we were having such lovely weather one would think the weatherman was running for office.

And look what happened! The thermometer jumped up toward the 100-mark.

So long as you know you're a jinx, why don't you just keep your mouth shut? You're baking us gals in the temporary buildings to a crisp.

"Swelfering Sue"

Dear Sweltering:

To make amends, I brought rain to portions of the District yesterday, by washing my car. And today I'll cause a cloudburst, by trying to participate in the Press Club's golf tournament.

Bill.

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK.—Col. David Marcus, the West Pointer who created the Army of Israel, had a premonition of death, in the hills of Jerusalem. In his wallet when he died was found this note, which was forwarded to his widow: "'The Ship'—I am standing upon the seashore. A ship at my side spreads her white sails to the morning breeze and starts for the blue ocean. She is an object of beauty and strength, and I stand and watch her until at length she is only a ribbon of white cloud just where the sea and sky come to mingle with each other. Then someone at my side says 'There! She's gone!'

"Gone where? Gone from my sight—that is all. She is just as large in mast and hull and spar as she was when she left my side, and just as able to bear her load of living freight—to the place of destination. Her diminished size is in me, not in her, and just at the moment when someone at my side says 'There! She's gone!' there are other voices ready to take up the glad shout 'There! She comes!' And that is Dying."

Ad Schulberg, the New York and Hollywood agent, just returned from Europe, where, during a trip behind the Russian lines, she saw a funeral procession crossing into the Soviet zone of Berlin. The weeping mourners marched behind the coffin. Soldiers stopped the procession and attached the coffin—which contained butter in bulk, whose transport across the lines is forbidden. . . . "How did you guess there was butter in the coffin?" Mrs. Schulberg asked one of the guards. . . . "The mourners were weeping too copiously," explained the guard. "And in Germany today, people don't weep that much over the dead."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Dewey Conferring on Campaign

(While Drew Pearson is on vacation, the Washington Merry-Go-Round is being written by his old partner, Robert S. Allen.)

Gov. Tom Dewey has been doing a lot of unreported high-powered conferring.

Among those he has counseled within these private talks are Speaker Joe Martin, House Floor Leader Charles Halleck, Senator Styles Bridges (N. H.), and Senator William Knowland (Calif.)

Martin

In these conferences Dewey has presented the main outlines of his campaign strategy. He has sought advice, but in the main his operational plans are definitely formulated. They are as follows:

1. The GOP campaign will get under way the middle of September and continue at an undiminished pace until election eve, November 1. Dewey will make a Labor Day speech. He doesn't consider it necessary to race around as extensively as President Truman will do that day. Dewey will confine his electioneering to a major speech at an important gathering.

2. The President's attacks on Congress—his chief campaign issue—will be met with the countercharge that he can't get along with Congress. To highlight this contention, Dewey will stress his record of "teamwork" with the New York Legislature, and also, on all occasions, will have prominently in his entourage several or more members of Congress.

3. Dewey will avoid any hard-and-fast promises to balance the budget or cut taxes. He feels that would be inadvisable because "we might not be able to deliver if the foreign situation gets worse." Instead, he will emphasize improving the administration of domestic and foreign affairs and eliminating "waste" and excessive personnel.

4. Dewey and his running mate will carefully coordinate their major speeches to eliminate conflicts and contradictions. This is to avoid what happened in the 1940 campaign, when the late Wendell Willkie and his running mate, the late Senator Charles McNary, occasionally talked at opposite poles.

"Truman is on the defensive, and we propose to keep him there," Dewey told one congressional caller. "I'm going to hit hard, but there is no need for a long-winded discussion of issues. The public already knows what it's all about. From our standpoint, the shorter the campaign, the better. Above all, I want to avoid an anticlimax before the election. We are going to build up to a climax, firing our heaviest guns in the final phases of the campaign. Timing is very important."

HCL Rations

Extract from a letter of a Western cattle-raiser to a Washington friend. "Sold a few steers this week that topped the local market —$26.80 per hundred pounds. Just grass steers, no grain. It looks like you're going to have to eat beans, fella, and like 'em."

Hot Oil

Commerce Secretary Charles Sawyer is on a hot seat over a decision on steel oil piping he must make in a few weeks.

The question is the licensing of a huge fourth-quarter allocation for export to the Middle East. Four big United States oil corporations are clamoring for the piping—Standard of New Jersey, Socony-Vacuum, Texas Co., and Standard of California. They want it to complete their 1100-mile line from the Persian Gulf to the Lebanon Coast. So far, only 300 miles have been installed.

The issue is hotly involved in both domestic and foreign politics.

Independent United States oilmen are violently against any export of the scarce piping. They have been yelling for months that their operations are being crippled for lack of the material. Also, Army and Navy chiefs are skeptical about the Trans-Arabian pipeline. Testifying before the Senate Small Business Committee, which investigated the matter, they expressed grave doubt the line could be defended in the event of war. They advised concentrating on developing new oil sources in the Western Hemisphere.

The big oil companies argue their pipeline would pay itself off in a few years in huge oil supplies. Even if subsequently lost, they contend, it would still be a good proposition for the present.

Another equally touchy factor is a bitter attack on the pipeline by the embattled Israeli government. It charges the shortest, most feasible and cheapest route is into Haifa, but that the oil companies are deliberately running the line through the Arab lands to favor them.

Israel controls a British-owned refinery at Haifa. So far, the British have refused to supply the plant with crude oil. Romania has offered to do so in return for refined products. Israel threatens to make such a deal unless the British fork over.

Flashes

Maj. Gen. William J. Donovan is back from Greece with a large mass of testimony on the still-unsolved murder of George Polk, United States radio correspondent. . . . Representative Dan Reed, 72-year-old New York Republican was renominated for a sixteenth term without setting a foot in his district. Just before starting for home, he broke a leg. . . . When Pentagon waitresses excitedly asked movie star Gene Raymond for his autograph, he replied, "you can have it, but why do you want mine? I'm only a reserve major and the place is fairly crawling with generals and admirals." . . . Carroll Reece, former Republican National Chairman running for Senator in Tennessee, has hired a former Washington correspondent as his publicity agent.

5000 to 6000 Women Chemists, Labor Dept. Says

By the United Press

The Labor Department reported yesterday that more women are employed in chemistry than in any other science except medicine.

The women's bureau of the agency issued a report on the outlook for women in chemistry on the eve of the 114th meeting of the American Chemical Society here.

The bureau said there are 5000 to 6000 women chemists, many of whom obtained jobs during the war in the steel industry, petroleum refining, munitions manufacturing and Government laboratories. It said wartime demands have been scaled down, but there are still more opportunities than before the war for well qualified women.

Give me your word

Sometimes I have the wish that I . . . Could start my life anew . . . With each and every part of it . . . A song to share with you . . . I wish that I could walk the streets . . . Beneath a brighter sun . . . And tell the world that you agreed . . . To be my only one . . . For I would be much better then . . . Than I have ever been . . . And with your loving faith in me . . . I could not fail to win . . . But even if I cannot start . . . To live my life anew . . . I will be happy if I know . . . That I may be with you . . . If only you will say the words . . . That take me to you heart . . . And solemnly you promise me . . . That we will never part.

Is this Leading You to this?

IF dandruff scales (magnified above) are accumulating on your scalp and causing it to itch and burn, you are probably being warned that thinning hair may follow. Specialists are not agreed as to all of the causes of baldness, but they do urge the removal of dandruff scales as a sound prophylactic measure.

For more than 25 years The Thomas have been removing dandruff scales and soothing the itch which they may cause. Consult a Thomas expert today, in private, without charge, and let him show you exactly what Thomas treatment is and how it works. Start the treatment and see for yourself how pleasant it is, and how much healthier and cleaner your scalp feels—come in today!

★ No. 21 IN A SERIES DEDICATED TO THE NATION'S CAPITAL, Washington ... ITS INSTITUTIONS AND ITS PEOPLE ★

THIS WEEK THE HECHT COMPANY SALUTES

The Federal Trade Commission

and its people who manage America's "Better Business Bureau"

●THE FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION . . . is composed of five Commissioners . . . who serve seven-year terms. They are appointed by the President of the United States and confirmed by the Senate. Not more than three may belong to the same political party. Assisting the Commissioners are upwards of five hundred men and women . . . all of whom play an important part in protecting the American public against unfair trade practices.

●THE FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION . . . performs two important functions . . . the enforcement of the laws it administers . . . and the conducting of general investigations of economic conditions in interstate and foreign commerce.

●THE FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION . . . conducts far-reaching surveys of radio and periodical advertising . . . correcting that which is fraudulent and misleading. During the fiscal year 1947, the Commission procured one thousand seven hundred thirty-three editions of newspapers and one thousand three hundred nine issues of magazines and trade journals . . . and examined almost four hundred thousand advertisements.

●THE FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION . . . during the fiscal year 1947, issued fifty-six cease-and-desist orders against firms using unfair methods of competition or otherwise violating the laws the Commission administers.

●THE FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION . . . examined over a million typewritten pages of radio commercials. An average of five thousand six hundred fifty-four pages of radio script were read every working day. Similar work is carried on in the field of mail-order advertising . . . as another protective measure in the public interest.

All material contained herein has been secured from the Federal Trade Commission and the United States Library of Congress.

The more than five hundred men and women of the Federal Trade Commission direct the world's largest "Better Business Bureau" . . . dedicating their work to the preservation of the American tradition of free competition . . . and taking steps to see that the public is protected against false and misleading claims in trade and commerce. American citizens, thus, may buy in complete confidence . . . knowing that a government agency is on the job . . . acting with public interest at heart. Additional duties of the people of the Federal Trade Commission are directed toward the same objective of perpetuating free enterprise and the competitive system of economy . . . the truly American way . . . which has given us the highest standard of living the world has ever known. As one of America's great retail institutions, The Hecht Company is especially happy to raise its hand in salute to the people of the Federal Trade Commission . . . whose work is so important to our industry . . . and who render such an important service to the people of our city and our country.
